FRENCH GIVE GROUND AT POINTS ON LEFT Germans Take Three More Antwerp Forts

GERMANS ROUTED AS CZAR REACHES FRONT IN RUSSIA

Russian Staff Claims Complete Victory in Battle of Augustowo, in Province of Suwalki, and Berlin Bulletin, While Optimistic, Is Indefinite.

CRACOW STRUGGLE STILL IMPENDING

German Invasion From East Prussia Has Failed Utterly, Petrograd Says, and Invaders Are Retiring From Russia.

By Associated Press.
 BERLIN, via wireless to Sayville, L. I., Oct. 5.—An official statement issued today says:

"Near Augustowo, the Third Siberian and parts of the Twenty-second Russian army corps, composing the left wing of the Russian army, on crossing the Niemen River, were defeated after a furious battle lasting two days. More than 2000 unarmoured Russians were made prisoners and a large quantity of guns and machine guns were captured."

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Russian reports indicate that the German offensive towards the Niemen River from the East Prussian frontier has ended in a German rout after the battle of Augustowo, in the Russian province of Suwalki, which has been under way since Sept. 25. If these reports are true it means that not only has Gen. Rennenkampf gained an opportunity to resume the offensive, but the important fortress of Osnowetz has been relieved from investment.

An official message from the Commandant of the German fortress of Koenigsberg, however, directly contradicts the Russian report, and the Berlin version of the fighting, though it does not localize it as particularly as the Russian report, maintains that the Germans along the East Prussian frontier have been generally victorious. As was expected, subsequent reports have discredited the rumor that the Russians were investing Cracow. It was hardly possible for the Muscovite forces to have reached there in such a short time, but a report that Cossacks have reached the neighborhood of Cracow is distinctly credible, as the famous Russian cavalry is showing an ability to cover the same wide field of operations as the uhlans in the western war area.

RUSSIAN ROADS BLOCK GERMAN

Petrograd Believes Plan to Take Warsaw and Move South Is Frustrated.

By Associated Press.
 PETROGRAD, Oct. 4, via London.—In Russian military circles it is felt that the Russian general staff is now able to analyze and will be able to forestall the intended German invasion of Russia.

In spite of the great importance of the eight-day battle between Gen. Rennenkampf on the Russian side and Gen. von Hindenburg on the German side, which has just come to an end and in which the Germans were not only unsuccessful in crossing the River Niemen, according to reports here, but were driven back to the frontier with heavy losses, losing the entire province of Suwalki excepting the town of that name, it is the opinion of Russian observers that the Germans intended this costly and futile demonstration to draw the Russian troops from East Poland as a preliminary to their main object.

This, as revealed by the present fighting near Warsaw, was an attempt to take Warsaw and thence move to the southwest to outflank the Russian army, which, having occupied Galicia, is now moving through Bukovina into Hungary. It is declared here that this intent has been made impossible by the bad conditions of the roads. The heavy German artillery could not go on. Nor has the German attempt to take the offensive at Cracow thus far been productive.

The reported presence of Emperor William in East Prussia and the departure of Emperor Nicholas for the front is taken here to emphasize the tremendous importance of the impending battle, which may be the biggest conflict of the war up to the present time in either the Western or the Eastern areas. Three million men, it is estimated in Petrograd, will be engaged.

Russians believe that if the German army is defeated at Cracow,

30 ANTWERP GUNS GO TO GERMANS WITH THREE FORTS

Report From Army Headquarters Says Lierre, Waelhem and Koningshooyck and Intermediate Redoubts Have Been Taken by Invading Forces.

ATTACK ON THE CITY NOW IS POSSIBLE

British Troops Are Co-Operating With Belgians in Defense of Metropolis and Their Artillery Is Said to Have Checked Enemy.

By Associated Press.
 LONDON, Oct. 5, by wireless to Sayville, L. I.—An official report from the German army headquarters says that in the siege of Antwerp the forts of Lierre, Waelhem and Koningshooyck and intermediate redoubts, with 30 guns, have been taken.

"Thus a breach has been made in the outer circle of forts," the report adds, "rendering an attack on the inner circle of forts and the town itself possible."

The following statement was given out yesterday: "In the siege of Antwerp, Forts Wavre-St. Catherine and Dorward have been taken and Fort Waelhem invested. Termonde, important strategic point, has been occupied."

Reference to the map shows that the three forts captured today are in the same general quarter as the three reported captured in yesterday's statement. The fall of the forts makes a great gap in the city's outer line of defense.

BRITISH AID IN ANTWERP DEFENSE

English Artillery Reported to Have Smothered German Attempt to Cross River.

By Associated Press.
 LONDON, Oct. 5, 4:25 a. m.—The Morning Post English correspondent in Antwerp makes the following statement:

"The Belgian field artillery is co-operating effectively with our heavy artillery. Our infantry is entrenched on the near bank of the Nethe, opposite the main German forces. Two German attempts to cross the river have been smothered by our artillery."

This dispatch is the first intimation that English forces have gone to Antwerp and are co-operating with the Belgians in the defense of that city.

Belgian Refuse Armistice.
 A dispatch to the Central News from Antwerp, dated Sunday night, says:

"The Germans have been refused to bury their dead, but Belgians refused to comply. The Belgians have destroyed all the bridges over the River Nethe. The Germans attempted unsuccessfully to rebuild the bridges."

Reuter's Amsterdam correspondent, in a dispatch filed Sunday, says: "The German troops today displayed greater activity around the Dutch frontier. They occupied Lisseveld after a short bombardment."

Lisseveld, a town of 3000, in the province of Limbourg, Belgium, lies three miles northwest of Maastricht. It is a frontier customs town.

An official statement from Antwerp, received by Reuter's Telegram Co., says: "The artillery duel continued throughout the day. The general situation is unchanged."

Decline Three Forts Have Fallen.
 The Belgian Minister received dispatches from Antwerp denying a report that three forts defending the city had fallen. He says Fort Waelhem was badly damaged by the Germans but that none of the fortifications surrendered and that the Belgians have strong positions which they are holding successfully.

A dispatch to the Central News from Amsterdam says word has reached there from Antwerp that Fort Waelhem destroyed an entire regiment of the besieging German Saturday afternoon.

An Antwerp dispatch to the Post says Fort Waelhem has met the brunt of the German attack. When several of the cupolas were damaged the commandant urged that the men who were most fatigued with the long fight should withdraw from the fort as only a small garrison was now necessary. Not a single man would retire voluntarily, and it was necessary for the commandant to give direct orders that part of the garrison should leave.

The commandant, though wounded, declared he would not leave so long as it was possible to have another shot at the enemy.

As a result of the flooding of the city...

King Albert of Belgium and Map of His Capital Whose Defense He Is Directing

King ALBERT of BELGIUM

King Albert Stays in Trenches 20 Hours Without Taking Rest

LONDON, Oct. 5. DISPATCH to the Exchange Telegraph Co. from The Hague says: "In the city of Antwerp itself great hopes are entertained of a final victory. There is not the slightest panic. King Albert is continually in the trenches, personally conducting operations. The King stayed in one of the trenches for over 20 hours without resting."

Witness Tells How British Aeroplane Dodged German Shells Outside Antwerp

From a Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and London Morning Post. (Copyright, 1914, by Press Pub. Co.)

ANTWERP, Oct. 5.—On Friday I witnessed from the outside of Lierre a most interesting engagement.

Under a heavy shell fire, a little after 4 o'clock, a British naval plane arose out of Antwerp and headed for the German lines between Willebroek and Hyndens. These machines fly with almost incredible swiftness. This one passed a fast motor car going in the same direction, as easily as a swallow passes a sparrow.

As soon as the British aeroplane got over the German lines it came under the fire of German guns especially destined to attack aviators. Two of these guns engaged the aviator. They fired first ranging shells which on bursting left a thick black smoke. These shells apparently first with a difference of elevation of approximately 500 feet, were designed to ascertain the elevation of the aeroplane, but the aviator seemed to shape his course so as to avoid passing near the smoke balls, which were in any case at a greater height than the machine.

German guns then began to fire with shrapnel as if satisfied with the information given by the range shells. Twelve shells were fired, all at a great height than the aeroplane, as if the design were to scatter balls on it from above.

Changing its course occasionally, the aeroplane flew about, completed its work and winged its way back to the Belgian lines. Its passage in safety under bursting shrapnel was one of the most exciting war incidents imaginable.

Descendants of Wellington and Ney Are Comrades Now

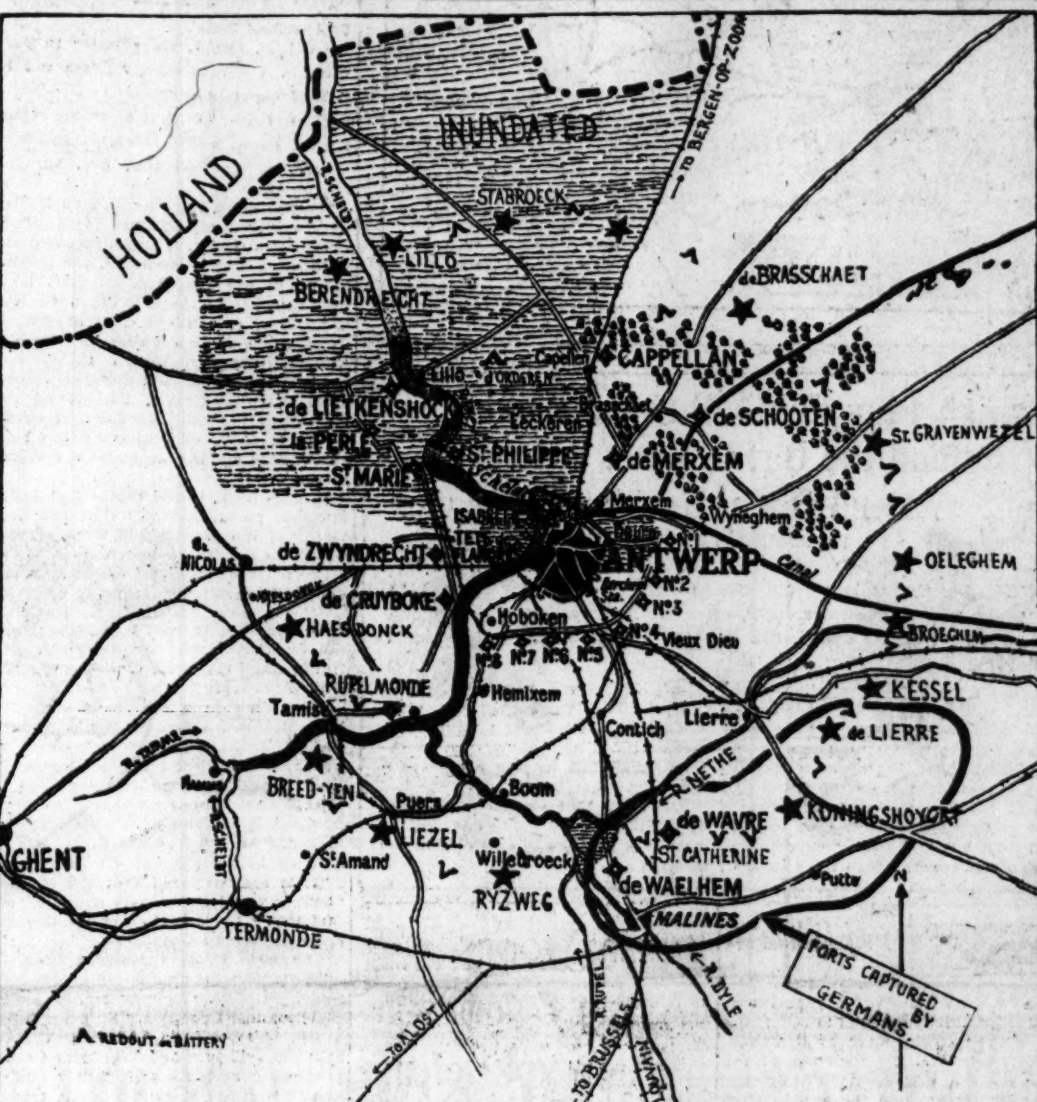

PARIS, Oct. 5.—Arthur Meyer, editor of the Gaulois, in notes in that paper today, tells how alliance change with time. He says he was taking luncheon recently when he met Lord Wellesley, a great-grandson of the Duke of Wellington, who was going to Belgium where he intended to fly to the British headquarters for work with the aviator corps.

When he arrived at the British headquarters, he will find there, acting as interpreter, Charles Ney, Duke of Elchevin, and descendant of Napoleon's renowned Marshal, who is about his own age. "Thus," says the Gaulois, "the descendants of the two opponents at Waterloo will work in this campaign side by side."

'Champagne War' Between Two French Departments Is Ended

LONDON, Oct. 5.—The Standard's correspondent in Amsterdam sends the following: "Information received here from Berlin says the Kaiser has promised to confer a special decoration of the second class of the Order of the Red Eagle on the first German aviator who succeeds in dropping explosives on London."

"Other lesser, but still unusual, honors are promised to German aviators who succeed in dropping explosives either on a British warship or on some other town in England."

THE locations of Fort Wavre-St. Catherine, whose capture the Germans announced yesterday, and of Forts Lierre, Waelhem and Koningshooyck, whose capture was made known in an official Berlin bulletin today, are shown on this map of the surroundings of Antwerp. They are neighboring fortresses at the southeast of Antwerp and are about 10 miles outside the city.

The outer ring of forts is 6 to 11 miles from the city, and each has a frontal crest line of more than 700 yards and mounts 120 guns and 15 mortars—very powerful, and of the latest pattern, other than Krupps; probably Serring, possible Creusot. Krupp guns were ordered for these defenses, but though the order was due to be executed in 1912, it had not been filled at the

NO EXTRA SESSION OF CONGRESS, SAYS PRESIDENT WILSON

By Associated Press.
 WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Outlining the legislative program for the remainder of the session of Congress, President Wilson told callers today that no extra session in November was contemplated. He added that only some extraordinary emergency would necessitate an extra session following adjournment of the short session in March.

The President said the war tax bill, the Clayton anti-trust bill and the Alaska coal leasing bill would complete the important work for the present session and that, when these bills were disposed of, he saw no reason why an adjournment should not be taken.

Oct. 15 is the date tentatively agreed upon. Asked about threats by Representative Henry of Texas to fight against an adjournment until cotton relief measures were passed, the President said the membership of the House, rather than Henry, would decide when to adjourn.

For the next session the program as outlined by the President will include the Alexander ship-purchase bill, the Philippine bill, the general leasing bill, the general land bill, the general dam bill and the usual appropriation bills.

Kaiser Said to Offer Prize for Bomb-Dropping on London

LONDON, Oct. 5.—The Standard's correspondent in Amsterdam sends the following: "Information received here from Berlin says the Kaiser has promised to confer a special decoration of the second class of the Order of the Red Eagle on the first German aviator who succeeds in dropping explosives on London."

"Other lesser, but still unusual, honors are promised to German aviators who succeed in dropping explosives either on a British warship or on some other town in England."

Cost of Living Cheaper in Germany Than U. S.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5. PRICE list received by Ferdinand Hansen of 170 Chambers street, from Germany, shows that out of 32 articles mentioned the prices of a majority of these are lower in Germany than in the United States.

Some of the comparative figures in the price list are as follows:	United States	Germany
Large cook's apples (5 lbs.)	15	25
Large cook's prunes (5 lbs.)	12	20
Carrots (5 lbs.)	11	20
Onions (5 lbs.)	10	15
Long potatoes (5 lbs.)	10	15
Fresh beans (5 lbs.)	10	15
Large cabbage (2 heads)	10	15
Red cabbage, large (2 heads)	10	15
Sauerkraut (5 lbs.)	10	15
Other figures on the list show about the same ratio.

Clement-Bayard's Chateau Is Left Unharmed by Duke

PARIS, Oct. 5.—The Matin relates how uhlans sought the house of M. Clement-Bayard, the aeroplane and automobile manufacturer at Pierrefonds, to burn it, because M. Clement-Bayard was arrested recently as a spy in Germany, but was released. But the villagers, the Matin says, misdirected the uhlans to another chateau, which the German horsemens burned. The Matin continues: "The Duke of Schleswig-Holstein arrived and established his headquarters in M. Clement-Bayard's house."

"When he went away he left a courteous note, remarking that the property was unharmed, and apologizing for requisitioning one of M. Clement-Bayard's automobiles, for which he left a receipt. The Duke, in his note, made allusion to the advertisement thereby given to the Clement-Bayard make of automobiles, and closed:

"You see, the Germans are not the barbarians they are accused of being."

Grain Crop in France Has Exceeded Experts Expectation

PARIS, Oct. 5.—France's grain crop, according to the Agricultural Department, has exceeded expectations. It is estimated at from 60,000,000 to 62,000,000 quintals (more than 6,000,000 tons).

BATTLE NORTH OF OISE STILL ON WITH GREAT VIOLENCE

Berlin Declares Battle Is Proceeding Successfully in Argonne and on Right Wing—Allies Closing the Door to Easy Exit Through Belgium.

By ASSOCIATED PRESS.

PARIS, Oct. 5, 3:02 p. m.—The following official communication was given out in Paris this afternoon: "On our left wing to the north of the Oise, the battle continues with great violence. The result remains indecisive. We have an obliged, at certain points, to yield ground."

"Along the remainder of the front there has been no change. "In Russia, after a battle which lasted 10 days, the German army which was operating between the Eastern Prussian front and the Niemen River, has been driven back along the entire line and made its retreat, abandoning a considerable quantity of war material. This army has evacuated completely the territory of the Russian provinces of Suwalki and Lonja."

The left wing, which has given ground at points, is that portion of the French forces which for weeks have been trying to outflank Gen. von Kluck, commanding the German right.

LONDON, Oct. 5, 10:26 a. m.—A dispatch to Reuter's Telegram Co. from Berlin, via Amsterdam, gives an official statement, issued at the German headquarters, last night; it says:

"In the western theater the battle on the right wing and in the Argonne district is proceeding successfully. The following official announcement was made earlier in the day:

"On the western wing, a new French attempt to encircle our forces has been repulsed. The French have been ejected from their positions south of Roze. "Sorties from Toul were repulsed with heavy losses."

Allies Extend Lines Northward; Overseas Force Strengthen Left

LONDON, Oct. 5, 1:15 p. m.—The fact that fighting is in progress in and around the town of Douai, between Arras and Valenciennes, on the railroad to Mons, is taken in London to show how surely the allies in Northern France have pushed the forward movement they hope eventually will envelop Gen. von Kluck, the commander of the German right wing.

The series of highlands stretching north and south along the allies' are the master keys of the battle and a considerable force from overseas and elsewhere has been pushed up to secure control of them.

At Soissons, several German trenches already have been captured, but the Germans continue to fight fiercely and are still attacking at this point as elsewhere along the entire line of battle, which their latest official report asserts is going in their favor just as confidently as Gen. Joffre maintains the contrary.

In the Eastern theater of the war the Germans would appear, according to English observers, to be contemplating a period of defense before undertaking the offensive. They are busily engaged between Thion, in East Prussia and Glatz, in entrenching themselves against the Russian hosts gathering on the other side of the frontier. It is calculated that there are 4,000,000 fighting men in this eastern area, and a repetition of the long and arduous siege battles, which have been such a feature of the struggle in France, seems a certainty.

The Russians continue to push toward Cracow, evidently with the hope of getting thence to Breslau and they go on stretching their tentacles out southward toward Budapest. Cossacks are well in on the plains of Hungary. Even Budapest admits they have crossed the River Theiss which was regarded as one of the main obstacles to their progress. By getting across the railroad at Szeged they secured the second line leading to the Hungarian capital. They had already seized the Lemberg-Budapest line at Ungvár.

The Austrians, on the other hand, claim further victories against their smaller enemy invading Bosnia, but they are silent on the subject of Sarajevo which, according to Serbian and Montenegrin statements is surrounded by their allied armies.

The correspondent of the Times at Bordeaux, commenting on the battle in Northern France, says:

"The time has not yet come to reveal the composition of the allies' left which is now striking up toward the Belgian frontier, but when the veil hiding the movement in the neighborhood of Amiens is drawn away it will be seen what a potent factor the French railway service has been in the battles of Northern France."

President's Visit to Front Adds to Optimism Evident in Paris

PARIS, Oct. 5.—When the long-drawn-out battle in the North was resumed today there was a feeling many quarters that decisive developments were imminent. Consequently this afternoon's statement of the War

OUR BIG RIVER MAKES A TROUBLE FOR THE BOAT LOOK SMALL.

"ON TO BERLIN!" CRIES PETROGRAD CROWD AS CZAR LEAVES FOR THE FRONT

Office on the battle of the Aisne, unique in the history of battles, was awaited with the greatest interest.

While the French realize that the battle has not yet been won, it does not seem to many of them that it can now be lost. If the allies win no doubt is felt that they will pay for it, the sacrifice on both sides already being great. The tone of the official communications has furnished the best reasons for hope on the part of the French, although the announcement of the visit of President Poincaré to the front was an additional factor for the confidence and optimism felt in regard to the intense struggle. His action is generally commented on as indicating that success is at hand.

The military critic, Lieutenant-Colonel Rousset, declares that the battle still can last for some time, pointing out that modern encounters last now as long as certain campaigns formerly did. In 1859 the situation was settled in two months, while in 1870 it took 13 weeks, the fighting after Sedan and Metz being merely a contest for honor.

In the furious fighting now going on, Lieutenant-Colonel Rousset says, neither adversary can claim what Napoleon called the result.

The official announcement issued by the French War Office last night said:

"First—On our left wing the struggle is in full swing in the region of Arras, without any decision having as yet been reached. The action has been less violent between the upper valley of the Aisne and the Somme, and between the Somme and the Oise. We have made progress in the region of Soissons, where some of the enemy's trenches have been captured.

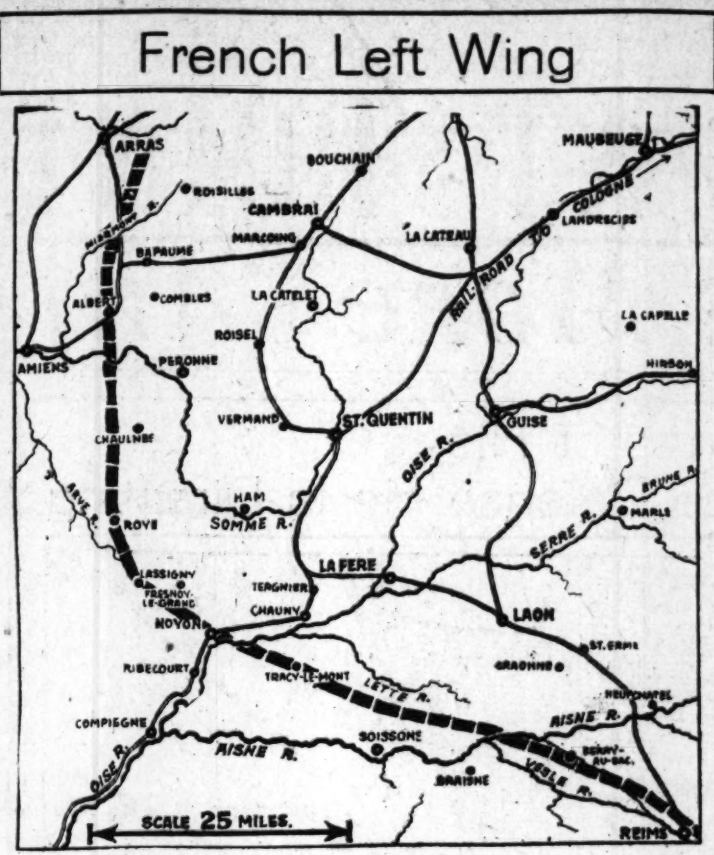

"Second—On almost all the remainder of the front the lull, already noted, persists. In the Woëvre region we have made some progress between Apremont and the Meuse and on the Rupt de Mad. In the Argonne we have driven the enemy back toward the north."

The following official statement was issued yesterday afternoon:

"1. On our left wing, after having repulsed all the enemy's attacks, we have resumed the offensive at several points. At other points our positions are well maintained.

"2. On the center nothing noteworthy has taken place as far east as the Argonne region. In Argonne we have driven the enemy back toward the north. In the south of Woëvre we are making progress, but very slowly.

"3. On our right wing in Lorraine and the Vosges there is nothing new."

Czar Arrives at Scene of Fighting Germans Repulsed

The war will be virtually over. Granted this defeat, they declare there will be insufficient forces left to stem the Russian invasion of Silesia, and thence to Breslau and Berlin, as well as the Russian advances through Cracow to Vienna and through Transylvania to Budapest.

Emperor Nicholas has arrived at headquarters of the active army, according to information given out today from general headquarters. Gen. Soukhopoloff, the Minister of War, the Court Minister and the palace commandant accompanied the Emperor.

Empress Alexandra and the daughters of the monarch bade him farewell at the railway station, where there were scenes of great enthusiasm, the crowds shouting: "On to Berlin," and "On to Vienna."

Before his departure, Emperor Nicholas signed a ukase calling out the reserves and ordering the mobilization of the mounted troops in the Eastern provinces, and of the Territorial.

Claims Complete Victory.

The official communication from the general staff headquarters, issued last night, reads:

"The battle of Augustow ended yesterday, Oct. 3, in a victory for the Russian army. The German defeat is complete.

"The enemy is at this moment in a disordered retreat toward the East Prussian frontier. The valiant Russian troops are in close pursuit, the Germans abandoning in their desperate march trains, cannon and munitions, not having even time to gather up their wounded.

"It is already known that the battle of Augustow began Sept. 29 with a bombardment by the German heavy artillery in the region of Sopotkin (on the left bank of the River Niemn), followed by an offensive movement by the enemy against the same fortified town.

"Retreat Is Hastened.

"At the same time, the Germans made repeated efforts to crush and dislocate the Russian forces near Druskeniki on the Niemn.

"Sept. 30 the Germans also began an attack on the fortress of Osowetz, but everywhere met with fierce resistance and were compelled to retreat. Noted with counter-attacks, our

ON THE BATTLE FRONT, via Paris, Oct. 4.

THE French soldiers were greatly surprised today (Sunday) to see their British comrades, after the long spell in the trenches, retire to some distance in the rear and inflate several footballs and begin lively games.

Some of the British battalions had lost a large proportion of their numbers in the severe battles of the last week, but the zest for the sport was unabated. Two battalions engaged in a regular match, on the result of which some money changed hands.

The players stripped off their tunics and caps, but retained their footgear, which was covered with thick layers of Russian guns, cleverly posted and screened, opened their concentrated fire on the crowded bridges.

German Swept Into River.

"Before the blast of shrapnel and machine-gun projectiles the Germans were swept into the river by hundreds. Speedily, however, the challenge of the Russian guns was taken up by the German artillery, and for a long time the duel continued.

"At last the Germans, thinking they had got the measure of the Russian gunners, made another attempt to throw their troops across the Niemn. But this time also they had no better luck, and none of the soldiers who stepped upon the bridges either reached the opposite shore or returned.

"The bodies of the slain floated in hundreds down the yellow flood of the Niemn. Still the Germans vigorously maintained their bombardment, and about 6 o'clock in the evening made a last and desperate effort to utilize the bridges on which they had spent such pains.

"Columns in close formation were sent forward to the crossings, but once again every man was mowed down by the murderous fire of the Russian machine guns.

Cossacks in Pursuit.

"With the fall of evening, the German batteries were silenced, one after the other, by the steady and well directed fire of the Russian artillery. The enemy then fell back eight miles, pursued and harassed by Cossacks who had crossed the river on the German bridges.

"According to one account, no fewer than 20,000 German corpses were carried down the Niemn after this awful carnage.

"In the fight at Sredniki, on the Niemn, Sept. 15, the German casualties also are said to have been large. An eye-witness of the battle says that in the river and on one of its banks, no fewer than 400 Germans perished. On the opposite shore from the city the bodies of 1500 Germans were lying unburied for some days afterwards."

GERMANS BEATEN BACK AT NIEMEN

LONDON, Oct. 5.—A graphic account of the frustrating of an attempt of the Germans to cross the Niemn River is given by the Daily Telegraph Petrograd correspondent.

"The Germans appear to have fallen into a Russian trap," the correspondent says. "Sept. 23 the rear guard of the Russian Gen. Rennenkampf's army was transferred to the right bank of the river, and the following evening the Germans approached the stream. The next day, seeing no signs of opposition, the Germans proceeded to construct pontoon bridges, and completed this work without molestation.

"It was only when the troops were pouring across to the right bank, in fancied security, that a sound like the roll of thunder was heard, and dozens

BERLIN BELIEVES PORTUGAL SOON IS TO ENTER THE WAR

German Capital Thinks Mobilization Has Been Ordered on British Demand.

"BRITISH SHIPS AT LISBON"

Leader of American Commission Sends Letter Praising German Nation.

By Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 5, via wireless to Sayville, L. I.—Press matter given out in official quarters says:

"The force of native troops from British India, which recently landed at Marseilles, has left that port for the northward.

"British ships have arrived at Lisbon and are probably destined to transport Portuguese troops. Portugal's co-operation in the war is imminent, the mobilization of the Portuguese forces, it is believed, having been ordered on the demand of the British Government.

"The Rumanian Crown Prince has been strongly rebuffed for his Russophile aspirations. The leaders of the Rumanian parties have declared themselves in favor of continuing the neutral policy of the Rumanian Government.

"A manifesto, issued by the Rumanian Socialist party, assumes that the neutrality of the country will be preserved, condemns the Russophile propaganda in certain newspapers and emphasizes the dangerous position of Russia.

"The Government of the Netherlands has strengthened the Dutch fleet along the frontier district to disarm Belgian troops when the latter cross the frontier from Antwerp.

"According to a statement made by his eminence, Cardinal Bettinger, the highest Roman Catholic authority in Bavaria, the statements appearing in English and American newspapers that priests have been shot and bayoneted by German soldiers while attending the wounded in Belgium are to be considered as absolutely without foundation.

"It is also declared that the English newspaper correspondents overlook the fact that a large portion of the German army is Roman Catholic.

Savants Protest Against Lies.

"A manifesto signed by Harnack, Bode, Behring, Hauptmann, Klingner, Sudermann, Roentgen, Fuld, Deismann, Humperdinck, Liebermann, Mann, Liep, Thoma and Wundt, and other prominent savants and artists indignantly protests against what is termed unceasing lies about the pretended barbarous warfare of the Germans.

The leader of the American Government commission, sent to Germany on board the cruise Tennessee to prepare for the return of American tourists, has addressed a letter to Franz von Mendelsohn and the German-American Relief Committee, highly praising the German nation in arms and thanking them for innumerable proofs of kindness.

"Russia is issuing $75,000,000 unsecured notes.

"The return of the German imperial bank last week shows $429,000,000 in specie, which is $10,500,000 more than in the previous week.

Another official statement given to the press says:

"Danish paper National Tidend publishes a statement by Gottlieb Jagow, the German Foreign Minister, in which he says that Great Britain had promised France assistance before German troops entered Belgium. England, in fact, had prepared for war by stirring up feelings of hatred against Germany after the old English way of playing European continental states against each other.

"The Daily Chronicle's Bordeaux report that Gen. von Stenger, commander of the German Fifty-third Infantry Brigade, had given an order that no quarter be granted, and for his soldiers to kill all the French encountered, armed or unarmed, is an impudent lie, like the French report that an Austrian motor battery was captured on the Meuse.

"The well-known British paper Graphic publishes a Belgian woman who severely injured soldiers with boiling water. The Sphere publishes illustrations showing women firing at uhlans, thus honoring the outrages of France.

"Count Michael Karolyi (president of the Hungarian Independent party), returning from a French prison, reports having seen Turcos carrying strings upon which were suspended ears, noses and fingers.

Boston Pastor's Notebook

Causes Arrest by Germans

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Albert A. Williams, pastor of the Maverick Congregational Church of Boston, has reached London after arrest and imprisonment in Brussels by the German authorities on the charge of being an English spy and with trying to buy information concerning the movement of German troops.

Notes made by Williams in a French dictionary for a sermon on the horrors of war fell into the hands of the Germans when he was arrested. A German Lieutenant believed that they constituted code messages.

Williams was arrested at the Metro-pole Hotel in Brussels and taken to German military headquarters. He was held with 30 other prisoners, mostly Belgians. He was not permitted to communicate with Brand Whitlock, the American Minister. Finally he persuaded a German student that he was not a spy and he managed to get a letter to Whitlock, who brought about his release.

Williams says that during the two days of his imprisonment he and the other prisoners were denounced by the Germans as pigs, and showered with oaths in an effort to frighten them. The Belgian prisoners regarded Williams as a friend, but were reluctant to talk, as they feared the Germans had spies among them.

Uster Leads in Recruiting in Ireland With 26,000

DUBLIN, via London, Oct. 5.—The number of new recruits for the British army obtained in Ireland amounts to about 26,000. More than 8000 of these are from the Dublin district, 4000 from the Cork district and the remainder, some 14,000, from Belfast (Ulster).

Not all the Belfast recruits are Unionists, nor are all the southern recruits Nationalists. The Belfast Nationalists claim to have furnished 5000 of the Belfast recruits, which number, relative to their total population, is larger than the proportion supplied by the Unionists.

Many of the southern recruits belong to football and athletic classes. There is not such a rush to join the colors from the agricultural districts as was anticipated, as there is a lack of men of available age. Emigration has left Ireland with a much greater proportion of the old and very young than there is in England, while she already has a much larger proportion of men in the army than has England.

Americans in Germany in No Hurry About Leaving

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Julius Lay, American Consul-General at Berlin, has advised the United States Embassy at London that he finds difficulty in persuading Americans that it is advisable to leave Germany.

About 10 Americans on an average arrive daily now through the American Relief Committee to leave Berlin. The London committee has each day only about 30 applicants for assistance. Most of these are from Germany.

German Dream of Quick Victory Faded in Last Month, Expert Believes

By the Military Expert of the New York Sun.

Published in St. Louis Exclusively by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch by Special Arrangement With the Sun.

UNDER the walls of the eastern forts of Liège, the first shots of the Belgian campaign were fired Aug. 4. Yesterday, then, marked the close of the second month of the great war and supplied an appropriate calendar division at which to measure the progress of the several campaigns.

The honors of the first month undoubtedly rested with the Germans. Thirty days after the artillery of the Kaiser awakened echoes, not merely of the hills above, but throughout the civilized world, his gray uniformed masses were on the Marne, and the roar of his cannon at Meaux and Langy was plainly audible on the boulevards and along the quays of the French capital. Five weeks after Germany had dispatched her first declaration of war, that to Petrograd, her massive military machine had overrun Belgium and reached the gates of Paris.

Looking backward, if the success was less complete, there was still little cause for German pessimism. It was true that about Lemberg the main Austrian army had been beaten, was falling back in a retreat which, as it turned out, was to become a rout, but north and east, in Poland and before Lublin, and in Lodz, Austrian and German soldiers were still advancing.

Victory on Sedan Day.

In East Prussia, too, on Sedan day (Sept. 1), Gen. von Hindenburg had won the sweeping victory of Tannenberg—"the Sedan of the East," German journals named it. The destruction of Gen. Rennenkampf's force, the right wing of the Russian battle line from the Carpathians to the Baltic, seemed quite as probable as the rout of Austrian army corps on the San and the Vistula.

Plainly, indisputably, Germany had won the first round. On Sept. 4—and to get a just appreciation of the situation on Oct. 4 in its proper relation to that of a month before, it is necessary to recall what the world expected on the earlier date—the press of London and Berlin alike talked frankly of the possibility that in a few days Paris might fall. The French Government had fled to Bordeaux, all the parallels and precedents of 1870 were on the lips and in the minds of men. For two weeks defeated French and English armies had retreated over the fields of Flanders, Picardy, Artois and Champagne—these provinces were lost, and there existed the grave possibility that the morale of the allied armies had been shaken—possibly destroyed.

One Month's Change.

But on Oct. 4 who could mistake the change? The battle of the Marne had been fought. The southernmost foothold of the German army, the one on the Noyon hills, was nearly 70 miles from Paris and 30 from Langy, the high-water mark of the advance of Von Kluck. Eastward, the German line now ran straight across the plain of Chalons. Noyon and Paris no longer surrounded, the army of the Crown Prince was retreating from Varennes, and the vicious thrust through the barrier forts at St. Mihiel seemed to be frustrated.

More than this, after a week of retreat and three weeks more of desperate, tremendous, heroic efforts, the German masses had been unable to get on foot again, to step out once more toward Paris. To Noyon and the Craonne Plateau, north of Soissons, Von Kluck had come back. Sept. 12. Von Bulow had been driven north of Rheims in the same general movement, and Oct. 4 neither the German right nor the center had regained a single mile of territory on this front.

Three weeks of the most confused and bloodiest fighting the Western world had known found the Germans and allies facing each other, deadlocked on lines swept by the heaviest artillery of three nations, cut and seamed with the trenches and barbed wire, and the German lines were daily growing more and more taking on the character of those lines below Richmond, where Grant and Lee did battle from July, 1864, to April, 1865.

British Reserves Come.

Meanwhile, to the west and north, new allied armies, gathered from every quarter of the globe, reinforcements of Sikhs and Gurkhas touching elbow with Moroccan Goums and battalions of black soldiers from the Senegal and the Niger, British regulars recalled from Hindustan and Egypt, strengthened or about to be strengthened by colonial troops from Canada and Australia, were moving upon the flank and rear of the German armies. Asia, Africa, America and Australia were beginning to contribute the first levies from resources which should henceforth be inexhaustible.

As a result of this thrust, all Northwest France had been recovered. Amiens, Lille, Arras, and other regions which had been occupied by Germans in early September and had paid ransom to their conquerors, were now redeemed. All the main railways from Paris to the Channel were in allied hands once more, and having been reconstructed, were conveying fresh troops far northward as the campaign developed toward the Belgian line.

In all this time the main effort of the Germans had been defensive. The hope of a new thrust at Paris, made promptly, when the armies defeated at the Marne should be refitted and rested, had vanished. Save for a desperate flank push toward the Verdun-Toul barrier, the whole concern of the German general staff was to protect its shattered right-

FRENCH PRESIDENT AND WAR MINISTER VISIT BATTLE LINE

Leave Bordeaux to Encourage Troops and Perhaps to Bestow Honors on Generals.

PREMIER IS WITH THEM

Departure Causes Rumor of Big Victory for Allies, but This Is Denied.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Times.

BERLIN, Oct. 5.—Premier Poincaré, who, with Premier Viviani and M. Millerand, the Ministers of War, departed Sunday for the front, will go first to the general field headquarters. It is not known whether they will visit Paris on their way. The party traveled in an automobile.

The fact that the President was going was not known generally, and when the party left the former arch-episcopal palace, now the official residence of the Government since its removal from Paris, there was only the usual small crowd in front of the building. It is considered highly probable that the object of the chief of the Government is visiting the front at this time is to bestow on one or more of the French commanders the honor of Marshal of France.

Five May Receive Honors.

The rank, which has existed under Imperial and royal Governments, had been allowed to lapse under the republic, but announcement was made several days ago that it would again be bestowed on men who had earned it by recent achievements.

Among these upon whom it is likely the honor will fall are Gen. Joffre, Commander in Chief; Gen. Gallieni, the military Governor of Paris, who organized the garrison of Paris; Gen. de Castelnau, who has operated against the German Crown Prince and has not permitted himself to be affected in his generalship by the loss of two sons, and possibly Gen. d'Amade, hero of the Moroccan War, who has been in command of the French forces operating to outflank Gen. von Kluck.

At present all the French Generals are out-ranked by the British Commander in Chief, Sir John French, who is a Field Marshal.

During the absence of Premier Viviani, M. Aristide Briand, the Minister of Justice, will preside over the Cabinet.

As the departure occurs the day after Caesar departed for the front, the Times considers this a far more significant event than the fact that the Kaiser is in Silesia. It says:

"Caesar Nicholas' presence at the head of his army will have considerable effect in the Balkans and in Italy as marking the moment when the great nations on the part of those who are waiting to reach decisions.

"It will decide popular opinion in Romania, which is offering the King the alternative of doing his duty as a constitutional monarch or of transmitting to his nephew the crown which he wished to lay aside in 1910 after the many manifestations by the organizations of sympathy of the people with France."

The news of the President's departure for the front gave rise to rumors that the allies gained a great victory, and that M. Poincaré had gone to witness the final discomfiture of the Germans.

The correctness of this deduction was officially denied.

Dutch Ship Sunk by Mine; Crew Landed in Holland

LONDON, Oct. 5.—A Rotterdam dispatch from Amsterdam says the Dutch steamer Nieuwland, while on a voyage from Goole, England, to Rotterdam, struck a mine in the North Sea and sank. Her crew of 17 men was saved by a trawler and landed at Ymuiden, Holland.

paign, like other campaigns, before Waterloo. Sedan and Sadowa had soured the belief that great resolutions could be crushed in weeks, even in days.

So, in a larger sense, Oct. 4 might be accepted as the date which saw the close of the first phase of the great war, the interruption, perhaps final, of German expectations, but at least the termination of the period in which she had hoped to win quickly, the extinction of the dream which had dominated her military operations from 1914 to the time when the battle of the Aisne became the battle of the Seven Rivers—of the three nations—for the immediate battle ground now stretched through Germany, France and Belgium from the Swiss to the Dutch frontier.

For 392 consecutive Sundays over 7½ years the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH has led all other St. Louis newspapers in the volume of business carried.

This is an unparalleled record. No other metropolitan Sunday newspaper in the United States has ever approached it.

On Sunday, Oct. 4, the POST-DISPATCH beat both of its Sunday competitors—the Globe-Democrat and Republic—added together by 7560 agate lines in the total volume of business carried.

The total count was as follows:

Bernstorff Visits Bryan, Gets Copies of New Peace Treaties

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, called at the State Department today and conferred with Secretary Bryan for half an hour.

When he departed the Ambassador carried copies of the new peace treaties between the United States and Great Britain, France, Russia, China, and nearly a score of other countries. Such a treaty was proposed to Germany some time ago.

The Ambassador declined to discuss his call. He returned recently from New York and had not seen Secretary Bryan for several weeks.

CORRESPONDENT DESCRIBES ANTWERP AS CITY OF DREADFUL NIGHT

How Aeroplanes Have Enabled Gunners to Find the Range of the Trenches of Hidden Troops

On the left is shown a German officer watching the flight of an Albatross monoplane along a hitherto unsuspected trench. The German aviator has flown over the intervening lines and has discovered the unsuspected presence of a strong body of reserves. He turns quickly at right angles and proceeds to fly along the trench.

On the right reserves in trenches discovered by a German aeroplane flying at 2000 feet above the line of trenches full of reserves. The officer watching through the range finder perceives by the movements of the aeroplane that men are below it. He telephones to the adjacent battery and soon shells are bursting over the trenches.

KAISER AT THE FRONT AS HE IS DESCRIBED BY EYE WITNESS FOR ENGLISH EYES

London Correspondent Sends Story of His Sleeping in French Chateau, Carefully Guarded, and of Making Many Speeches to Troops.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

(Copyright, 1914, by Press Pub. Co.) LONDON, Oct. 5.—The London Standard's correspondent at Amsterdam, under date of Saturday, telegraphs that a typical day with the Kaiser is thus described "by an eyewitness."

"Rid yourself first of all of the idea that the Emperor is a heroic figure; he is a man of not exactly a small figure, but he is distinctly below the average height and rather fat, so that he is more like a typical bear drinker and sausage eater than a knightly cavalier. Moreover, his left arm is about 10 inches shorter than the right arm and partially paralyzed. This deformity strikes the eye unpleasantly, though one cannot withhold a certain admiration for the energy which enabled the Kaiser to become a good shot and a passable rider in spite of this tremendous handicap."

"On this particular occasion the Kaiser had been sleeping in a French chateau, but not without elaborate precautions against a surprise attack."

Elaborate Precautions Taken. "The extraordinary measures taken to guard the Kaiser must be attributed not so much to personal cowardice as to his profound conviction that his safety is essential to the fatherland."

"The chateau was fortified against attacks. Sacks were piled on the roof and a protective shield metal network was erected."

"Whenever the Kaiser moves his quarters a small army of military engineers precedes him to carry out these defensive measures before his arrival."

"Around the chateau were men of his special bodyguard, a detachment was outside his bedroom, another in the hall, another at the front door and two more detachments were in the rooms immediately above and beneath his own door."

"Three unbroken lines of sentries surrounded the house, a whole battalion of infantry and several squadrons of cavalry were encamped in the park."

"This was some 20 miles from the front, and the chateau was connected by wireless telegraph with headquarters of the nearest army, so that any sudden retreat of the German legions should not place the supreme war lord in danger."

"Soon after sunrise the Kaiser emerged from the chateau and greeted his soldiers with his customary 'Good morning, soldiers,' to which all of them in the immediate vicinity replied in unison: 'Good morning, Your Majesty.'"

Physicians Keep Austrian Ruler Away From Hospitals

ROME, via Paris, Oct. 5.—A report received here from Vienna says Emperor Francis Joseph has yielded to the advice of his physicians to abstain from visiting the hospitals where wounded soldiers are being treated. Archduke Eugene will take up this task for the Emperor.

Party Leaders in Rumania Object to Entering the War

LONDON, Oct. 4.—The Rome correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Co. has sent the following dispatch: "A message from Bucharest, Rumania, announces that the president of the Council of the Crown and conservative and democratic leaders have decided to ask King Charles not to hold the council meeting fixed for this week, saying there is no need for Rumania to change her policy of neutrality."

Recent dispatches stated that King Charles, because of a promise he had made to Germany, desired to mobilize the Rumanian army to assist the Germans in the war, but that only one member of the council sided with the King.

BESIEGERS OFFER TO SAVE ANTWERP'S FAMOUS BUILDINGS

Message Is Communicated to Belgians Through the American Minister at Brussels.

By E. ALEXANDER POWELL, Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright, 1914, by Press Pub. Co.) ANTWERP, Oct. 4, via London, Oct. 5.—The General commanding the besieging Germans has informed the American Minister, Brand Whitlock, at Brussels, that it is the desire to preserve the famous churches and historical monuments and museums of Antwerp from destruction by shell fire during the impending bombardment. He promises that, if the Belgian Government will give formal assurances that these places will not be used for military purposes, and if the American consular authorities will see that such promises are observed, German gunners will endeavor to avoid damaging the building in question.

Acting under instructions from the Secretary of State, Consul-General Diederich this morning communicated this message to the Belgian Foreign Office, which promptly agreed to give the assurances required, and is now preparing a map of the city, with churches, museums and hospitals clearly indicated, for transmission to the German General Staff at Brussels.

As it is obviously impossible for anyone but an American to perform this mission under the existing circumstances, the Belgian Government and the Belgian Consul have asked me if I am willing to act as a delegate and deliver the Belgian Government's acceptance of the German proposals, together with the plans of Antwerp, to the German military authorities in Brussels.

Post-Dispatch Man Envoys. In view of irreparable loss which the destruction of the Antwerp cathedral, museum and other monuments would be to civilization, I have deemed it my duty to accept this mission. In order to give me official status, Consul-General Diederich has nominated me as a Deputy Consul-General, and the Belgian Foreign Office has agreed to issue my exequatur immediately.

Mr. Whedbee of New York, a director of the British-American Tobacco Co., who accompanied me on a previous trip through the German lines, has agreed to go with me. We expect to leave by automobile tomorrow morning. If we can be of service to this gallant little country we shall consider it a privilege and an honor.

French Embassy Replies to Germans' Charge of Cruelty

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The following statement was issued at the French embassy here yesterday: "In an attempt to explain away the ruthless destruction of Orthes, a statement has been published, according to which 20 German wounded found in a field hospital which had been moved forth by the Bavarians, then abandoned by them, then recovered, had had their noses and ears cut off by the French. The answer is: 1. That there are no French doctors nor irregulars at all in France. 2. That the kind of men who give the German wounded the same treatment as the French in the French hospitals and who risked their lives to save those of the German wounded, honored in the Rhine Cathedral when that sanctuary was set on fire by German shells, are unlikely to commit atrocities."

Carry All Their Baggage. Their baggage? Oh, yes, this family of five have their tied up in a handkerchief which the mother clasps in her arms, while next to them a group of seven have enough almost to fill a sheet, and the two smallest children are asleep on it. Most of them have walked all the way to Antwerp, and even if the fires the Germans set in their homes spared anything it is rather difficult to carry two or three babies and any large amount of household effects 30 or 40 miles.

There is no formality about going ashore. You simply walk up the gangplank and there you are. The customs men make a pretense at looking

BESIEGED BELGIAN PORT, DARK AT NIGHT LIKE A METROPOLIS OF THE DEAD

People Tread Softly in Fear of the Germans—Houses in Bombarded City Look as if Bullets Had Been Sprayed on Them.

From a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright, 1914, by Press Pub. Co.) LONDON, Sept. 26.—There is just one thing certain about Antwerp that can be said without fear of contradiction, and that is that on the stroke of 8 o'clock every night Antwerp becomes the darkest and blackest city in the world. Not the faintest glimmer of light is to be seen anywhere. Not a sound is to be heard. Even the few privileged persons allowed to be out after 8 o'clock tread softly. Add to this a dark and lowering sky and you have a real "city of dreadful night."

At least that is how my first Antwerp night impressed me. Almost anything else that you may say about this quaint Belgian city, under present conditions, is quite likely to be contradicted. I shall only tell what I have seen and heard.

As you sail up the Scheldt River after leaving Flushing you pass mile after mile of absolutely flat, drear mud land, without a living or growing thing in sight. Not a tree breaks the landscape; nothing but dank desolation, utter solitude. After all you have read of how Belgium has been laid waste you begin to feel that all of Belgium is like this.

The Forts of Antwerp. In fact, you are somewhat prepared to find Antwerp itself a barren waste of mud land. As you get nearer the city, however, you come into sight of the first fort. Here and there a sentry stands on top of the dyke, silhouetted against the sky. He is the only thing you have seen in 20 miles that is more than a foot high. And a queer figure he makes, for the Belgian soldier is a little bit of a chap and the bayonet of his rifle towers several feet over his head. He resembles, in a striking manner, the toy soldiers we played with as children, and you are in constant fear he will topple over the next minute.

Soon, all along the dyke, other funny little figures climb up and wave their caps in friendly greeting. As you approach the landing pier you come almost on top of a very well constructed pontoon bridge which the Belgians have built across the Scheldt for the passage of troops.

As we draw up to the pier we pull together alongside the steamer Brussels of the Great Eastern Railway Co., her decks fairly swarming with fair-haired Belgian refugees, children outnumbering the grownups five to one. Most of them are wearing wooden sabots; many of them are barefooted. On the pier are several hundreds more. We shall take them back with us. They are from tiny villages and hamlets around Louvain and Termonde.

Carry All Their Baggage. Their baggage? Oh, yes, this family of five have their tied up in a handkerchief which the mother clasps in her arms, while next to them a group of seven have enough almost to fill a sheet, and the two smallest children are asleep on it. Most of them have walked all the way to Antwerp, and even if the fires the Germans set in their homes spared anything it is rather difficult to carry two or three babies and any large amount of household effects 30 or 40 miles.

There is no formality about going ashore. You simply walk up the gangplank and there you are. The customs men make a pretense at looking at your baggage, but that is all. Nobody carries more than they can walk off with," said a man to a friend.

In nowadays, we had been careful to have our passports viced at the Belgian embassy before leaving London, but they were never looked at.

And now for this city of contrasts, for if Antwerp is a "city of dreadful night," it is all bustle and stir in the daytime. In fact, the whole city lives in the streets while the sun is up, as if to make up for the gay evenings it is robbed of. Or perhaps it is for fear the people may miss something that is going on, that they flock to the streets.

Even the old women sit in the open doorways hearing the gossip and now and then doing a little sewing or knitting. A flag floats lazily from the tall steeple of the cathedral. That reminds me of a bit of conversation that I heard that is not without its grim humor.

"I am going to change hotels to-night," said the other.

"Because I am within 30 years of the cathedral," was the reply.

Every visitor to Antwerp is taken to the places where the Zeppelin bombs fell, and after surveying the havoc they created, one does not wonder at the stygian darkness into which the city is plunged at night. In one street, about as wide as Olive street, the walls of the houses on both sides of the street, for a distance of what would approximate a little more than half of one of our north and south blocks, are filled with so many holes that they look as if the bullets had been sprayed from a hose.

It will take at least 20,000 men to take Antwerp, the wiseacres say, and the Germans will lose 100,000 before the other 100,000 will walk in.

In this connection I wish I were at liberty to tell you the name of the concern which has done most for the defense of Antwerp. It has furnished aeroplanes, shells and other ammunition, miles of barbed wire, and has connected the wire entanglements with the full force of the city's electric plant. A few crows have been driven into the wire entanglements, and the result would make the record at Sing Sing death chamber pale into insignificance.

The name of this concern is known to practically every man and woman in business in the United States and upward of 500,000 persons in New York send the parent concern a check each month. So Antwerp seems likely to know its fate soon. Some people are very confident and are talking about what will happen when the Belgian army marches into Brussels.

"Maffeking" night in London will be nothing to what will happen when we march into Brussels," a military man remarked.

"But do you think the Germans will leave any Brussels for you to march into?"

"Ah! That we don't know, but we will have the celebration anyhow."

At your baggage, but that is all. Nobody carries more than they can walk off with," said a man to a friend.

AUSTRIAN DEPUTY SAYS TRENT WAITS FOR LIBERATION

Socialist's Speech in Milan Followed by Demonstration and Other Fiery Talks.

By Associated Press.

MILAN, Oct. 4, via Paris Oct. 5.—A great meeting was held here tonight and before a large and enthusiastic crowd Sig. Sattini, a Socialist Deputy from Trent, Austria, made a speech in which he said that he was much touched by the imposing demonstration. He could only say, as a son of Trent, that it was awaiting liberation by its alien brothers.

"The liberation of Trent and Trieste," he said, "means the accomplishment of a duty left as a heritage by the great makers of the fatherland."

The enthusiastic crowd, following the speech, paraded the streets and the attempts of the police and carabinieri to restrain the people were in vain. At the Montenegro Consulate a crowd made a manifestation of sympathy and then marched to the monument of Garibaldi, where other speakers delivered fiery speeches.

Rumor Says Italians Have Occupied Albanian Port of Avlona.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—A Stefani Agency dispatch from Rome says a telegram received from Avlona states that Epirotes have been defeated by Albanians and evacuated Berat, leaving four large guns, two quick-firers and a number of prisoners in the hands of the Albanians.

A dispatch to Reuters Telegram Co. from Rome says the Villoria has published a special edition saying a rumor is in circulation that Italian sailors were landed at Avlona (a seaport of Albania on the Adriatic Friday). There is no confirmation of the rumor.

A dispatch from Trieste to a Paris paper Sept. 13 said Italian troops were disembarking at Avlona. This movement was because of the disturbed conditions following the abdication of Prince William of Wied. Kiam Elbasan, at the head of 4000 insurgents, was reported to have threatened to sack Avlona.

Later Albania was reported to have elected Prince Burhan-Eddin, son of the former Sultan, Abdul Hamid, Prince of Albania. Rumors that Italy would forthwith occupy Avlona followed, but on Sept. 28 it was officially stated in Rome that the question of Turkish intervention in Albania had been overshadowed by the greater question involving the whole of the Adriatic and it was denied that an Italian expedition to Avlona was imminent.

Italians in Trent Ask Italy to Annex Austrian Provinces.

ROME, Oct. 5, via Paris.—Italians from Trent in Austria, who reside in Italy, have petitioned the Italian Parliament to complete the work of freeing Italy begun by King Victor Emmanuel and Garibaldi. They request that Italy unite to the kingdom the Austrian provinces inhabited by Italians. The petitioners are headed by Signor Battista, a Socialist Deputy from Trent.

German Blamed for Burning of Louvain French Prisoner

LONDON, Oct. 5.—According to a Paris dispatch to the Express, Maj. von Manteuffel, the German officer who is alleged to be responsible for the destruction of Louvain, is a prisoner in the hands of the French.

He has been identified by a Russian attaché with the French staff who knew him when he was German Military Attaché at Petrograd.

War Causes Great Religious Revival Throughout France

LONDON, Oct. 5.—"One result of the war has been a distinct religious revival in France," says the Paris correspondent of the Times. He continues:

"The so-called 'clerical peril' has disappeared from popular imagination. Everywhere priests have been distinguished for their heroism and patriotic devotion. Several have died on the field of battle and others are showing great devotion as chaplains and in attending the wounded."

The Times, in an editorial, says: "No feature of the war has been more striking than the religious feeling it has evoked. We shall be surprised if the war and the pro-spiritual emotions it has kindled are not attended by a quickening and deepening of the religious feeling in England as well as France."

King of Bavaria Commands Force Sent Against Russia

PETROGRAD, via London, Oct. 5.—The military critic of the Russian Slowo says the German army assembled in Silesia includes two Bavarian corps, the army is commanded by the King of Bavaria and the Russians now have to deal with a total of six armies. Two of these, in East Prussia, constitute the left flank; two in West Poland form the center and two others are concentrating on the right wing in West Galicia.

Polish peasants in Kallaz, Russian Poland, are carrying on a guerrilla warfare, in which the Germans and the peasants hunt each other in the forests with the aid of snares and entanglements. No mercy is shown on either side, according to newspaper dispatches.

CHAMPION BABY IN FRANKLIN AVENUE SHOW IS A BOY

Joseph Edward McNally Jr. Scores 99.7 and a Girl, Second, Makes 99.4.

The champion baby of the Franklin Avenue Baby Show is a boy. He is Joseph Edward McNally Jr., 25 months old, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. McNally of 3851 Labadie avenue. His father is a salesman.

Young McNally received his laurels shortly before noon today after parading downtown streets with several scores of babies entered in the Franklin Avenue Improvement Association's Perfect Baby Contest. His score was 99.7, which indicates that all the doctors and nurses who examined his physical merits decided he was about as near perfect as any baby could be.

His victory was by a narrow margin, for Doretta Bockerstette, 24 months old, scored 99.4. She has been crowned as the grand champion girl, while young Mr. McNally's twin brother, champion boy, Henry and Katherine Bockerstette, 4450 North Taylor avenue, are the parents of the girl champion.

Ribbons to Boys and Girls. Eight boys and eight girls received a ribbon in the A, B and C classes. In the class A for boys, Walden Fredrick Pavitt, 18 months old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Pavitt of 3611A South Grand avenue, received a blue ribbon. Ralph Raymond Dittenhoefer, 33 months old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Dittenhoefer of 1191A McCausland avenue, received a red ribbon, and Gerhard Wilkes Kelach, 12 months old, a yellow ribbon.

In class A for girls, Dorothy Wiethop, 22 months old, was given a blue ribbon; Elita Varnice Stephens of 321 Chambers street, a red ribbon; Fleta Josephine Nigh of Anglum, Mo., a yellow ribbon.

In the class B for boys, James Huber, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Huber of 4748 Gano avenue, received a red ribbon, and Louis Romeny, 4235 Page boulevard, a yellow ribbon.

In class B for girls, Marie Bertha Metz, 30 months old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Metz of 2306A Hickory street, received a red ribbon and Helen Anna Ban, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Ban of 1454 Dillon street, a yellow ribbon.

Ribbon to Maplewood Girl. In the class C for boys, William Adolph Gure, 46 months old, received a blue ribbon; Robert James Callahan, 38 months old, of 1122 Temple avenue, a red ribbon, and Harold Edwin Drysdale, 39 months old, of 2227 Switzer avenue, a yellow ribbon.

In class C for girls, a blue ribbon was awarded to Evelyn Irene Riehl, 37 months old, Maplewood, Mo., Lillie Bell Hoffman, 40 months, of 3012 North Ninth street, was given a red ribbon and Jane Frances Wiggins a yellow ribbon.

Every child in the contest who registered and took the first examination received a silver drinking cup engraved with the word "Baby" as the gift of the Franklin Avenue Improvement Association.

Dr. E. J. Wallace Wallin, who this year established a new department for backward children in St. Louis Public schools, examined the children in the mental test. The babies took this with more grace than they did the physical examination.

San State Penitentiary Father. Ulrich Downing, 23 North Market street, while trying to separate his two sons, Harland, 16, and Warren, 14, who were fighting, was cut on the back of the left hand with a knife held by Warren. The boys were arrested but released, as their father refused to prosecute.

ONLY SIXTEEN, GIRL VERY SICK

Tells How She Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I take pleasure in writing these lines to express my gratitude to you. I am only 16 years old and work in a tobacco factory. I have been a very sick girl, but I have improved wonderfully since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am now looking fine and feeling a thousand times better."

—MISS AMELIA JAQUILLARD, 3961 Tchoupitoulas St., New Orleans, La.

St. Clair, Pa.—"My mother was alarmed because of my sickness. I also had pains in my back and side and severe headaches. I had pimples on my face, my complexion was sallow, my sleep was disturbed, I had nervous spells, was very tired and had no ambition. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has worked like a charm in my case and has helped me. I worked in a mill among hundreds of girls and have recommended your medicine to many of them." —MISS ESTELLA MA-GUIRE, 110 Thwing St., St. Clair, Pa.

There is nothing that teaches more than experience. Therefore, such letters from girls who have suffered and were restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound should be a lesson to others. The same remedy is within reach of all.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letters will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

REALTY FIRM'S ASSETS APPRAISED AT $1635

Nichols-Ritter-Goodnow Schedules a Valuation of $429,000.

An appraiser's report filed with Bankruptcy Referee Coles today shows the assets of the bankrupt Nichols-Ritter-Goodnow Realty Co. have an appraised valuation of $429,000. In the schedules filed by the company these assets were valued at $429,000.

Referee Coles authorized A. H. Fredrick, trustee for the creditors, to turn over the bankrupt company's furniture to the International Life Building Co. to satisfy a claim for the rent of the company's former offices at 718 Chestnut street.

As efforts to induce E. P. V. Ritter, president of the bankrupt company, to come to St. Louis and testify were unsuccessful, the referee authorized Clarence T. Case, attorney for the trustee, to go to New York and take Ritter's deposition.

Jeanette Adler and Clever Company. Jeanette Adler, supported by a sextet of pretty girls, began an engagement at Melshelmer's Cafe, Ninth street and Washington avenue, Sunday evening, and they will continue to produce their clever entertainment for an indefinite period. The Melshelmers brought Miss Adler and her company from Chicago, where they had been showing at the Empress Theater for some time. Despite the heavy expense, the management of the cafe has put no time limit on the engagement of the company, so that they will probably be seen for several weeks.

To Postpone Pan-American Congress. WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The fifth Pan-American conference scheduled to be held in Santiago, Chile, Nov. 29, probably will be postponed until the close of the European war. The matter will be considered Wednesday at the meeting here of the governing board of the Pan-American Union.

Sculptor Found Dead in Hotel. SAN JOSE, Cal., Oct. 5.—John Van Rennaalser, a sculptor, was found dead from heart disease in a hotel here late yesterday. Van Rennaalser had been here since Sept. 8 and was believed to have come from the East.

TO SAFEGUARD FIREMEN

Greater Care Will Be Taken by Motormen at Street Corners. Officials of the United Railways are working with fire department heads in an attempt to eliminate the dangers at many street corners which have resulted in numerous accidents to fire apparatus and injuries to firemen.

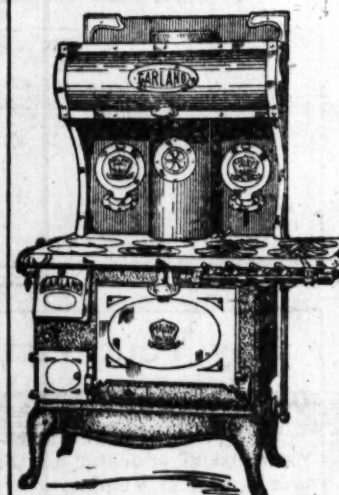

Chief Anderson has issued orders to all district fire chiefs to furnish lists of dangerous crossings in their districts. These will be given to Supt. Cameron of the United Railways, who has agreed to put signs at the dangerous crossings and require motormen either to run slowly or come to a full stop at these points.

OLD-TIME REMEDY MAKES PURE BLOOD

Purify your blood by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. ## PRESIDENT HOPES WATTERSON WILL BE GUEST NEXT

Tells Callers Kentucky Editor
Would Be Welcome—Col.
Harvey Called Sunday.

THREE DISAGREED IN 1911

Breach Between Executive and Earliest Supporters Near to Being Closed.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—That President Wilson is about to make peace with Henry Watterson, editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, as well as with Col. George Harvey, editor of the North American Review, whom he saw at the White House yesterday, was suggested today when President Wilson told callers he hoped to see Mr. Watterson at the executive mansion. He added that no arrangements for such a meeting had been made.

The meeting of the President and Col. Harvey was their first since their talk in 1911 in the presence of Col. Watterson, which gave rise to Mr. Watterson's later attacks on Mr. Wilson and led Mr. Wilson to withdraw his support from Mr. Wilson for the presidential nomination.

Mr. Harper called at the White House at the invitation of Mr. Wilson to discuss the European situation and the fall campaign. In the last issue of his magazine Mr. Harper praised the President's attitude on the war and suggested he wait patiently for the psychological moment to urge peace. He also advocated the election of a Democratic Senate and House in November. The President and Mr. Harper were in conference for more than an hour. It was said at the White House that the meeting was most friendly, and that past differences were not referred to.

Talk Was Friendly.
Mr. Harvey had called at Mr. Wilson's request to discuss public questions, principally the European war situation, and that, "as a matter of course," the talk was friendly.

The White House meeting followed a conference between Mr. Harvey, Mr. Tumulty, the President's secretary; Frederick Lynch, Democratic national committee man from Minnesota, and Thomas Pence of the National Committee's Publicity Bureau. The fall campaign was discussed.

In December, 1911, Mr. Wilson, then Governor of New Jersey, talked with Harvey and Henry Watterson in a New York club. The three were fast friends and the editors had worked together in Mr. Wilson's interest in New Jersey.

In January, 1912, Mr. Watterson issued a statement which told the public for the first time that there had been a breach at the club conference between Mr. Wilson and "the two Colonels," as they came to be styled. Watterson referred to Gov. Wilson as "a schoolmaster, not a statesman," and said he had treated the two veteran Democratic editors as if they were schoolboys.

Charge of Ingratitude Made.
The charge of ingratitude was also made, the statement relating that when asked by Harvey whether the support of Harper's Weekly was embarrassing him, Gov. Wilson had replied it was. After the publication of this statement feeling became bitter among the partisans of the three men.

Mr. Watterson, thereafter, openly supported Speaker Clark for the Democratic nomination, while Mr. Harvey showed great friendliness for the Speaker, although he made no public declaration in his favor.

LOCAL PEOPLE GLADLY PRAISE NEW TREATMENT

Scientific facts are often hard to believe. You cannot always believe what you see in print. But you must believe the testimony of your own eyes. This is why we use local statements of users of Tona Vita in the effort to convince you of its merits.

These statements come from people who live in your very midst. You can see for yourself how the lines of care on their faces have been replaced by the optimistic smile of health. You can talk with them and see how they have new confidence in themselves. They look doubly fit to fight their part in the battle of life.

Elwine Ulbricht, of 3321 Ohio avenue, St. Louis, Mo., is such a person. He made the following statement:

"St. Louis, Mo.
"Tona Vita was recommended by a friend of mine, and after taking one bottle I feel much better. I was nervous and could not sleep well. Since taking Tona Vita I am sleeping better and getting stronger and can eat more regular. I have had Chronic Diabetes for ten years or more. I will recommend your medicine to friends of mine."

"ELWINE ULBRICHT,
"3321 Ohio avenue."
Tona Vita will help anyone who suffers from either dizziness, loss of appetite, sleeplessness, lack of vigor and ambition, poor memory, premature old age or a general feeling of being "run down." Most druggists handle this tonic, but in the event you cannot get it send us one dollar and twenty-five cents and the name of your druggist and we will send you a bottle by express with all charges prepaid.

ONE DAY OF RAIN, THEN FAIR WEATHER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—RAINY weather over most of the East and South was forecast by the Weather Bureau last night for the first half of the coming week.

"In the upper Mississippi and the Missouri valleys rain Monday will be followed by generally fair weather and a decided fall in temperature that will continue for a few days," said the bulletin.

"In the upper lake region rain Monday and Tuesday will be followed by a few days of fair and cooler weather. West of the Rocky Mountains the weather will be generally fair and somewhat warmer."

K. G. CARPENTER'S SKULL FRACTURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Anderson Gratz, Who First Was Reported Seriously Injured at Dobbs' Ferry, N. Y., Escaped.

Kenneth G. Carpenter of 12 Portland street, St. Louis, was seriously injured yesterday afternoon in an automobile accident at the entrance to the Edwin Gould estate near Dobbs Ferry, N. Y. He sustained a fracture of the skull, but is expected to recover.

Information regarding the accident was received this morning by long distance telephone at the cordage mills office and at the office of the American Manufacturing Co. in the Rialto Building.

Earlier reports had stated that Anderson Gratz, vice-president of the American company, was probably fatally injured, but the telephone messages stated that he escaped unhurt. The chauffeur of the car was seriously injured.

George F. Tittman, general manager of the cordage mills company, said an operation was performed on Carpenter last night and that the surgeons said they expected him to recover.

In the machine shop Carpenter and Gratz were Gratz's nephew, Clifford B. Gratz and his wife of New York, a Miss Magner, daughter of a New York attorney, and Hilgarde Tittman of New York, a brother of George F. Tittman. According to the long distance messages, Carpenter and the chauffeur were the only ones seriously injured, the others suffering only bruises and minor cuts.

It is said the chauffeur, in attempting to pass another car at high speed, ran his car off the roadway, and that it struck a tree, wrecking the car and throwing the occupants out.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Walsh of 3645 McKee avenue are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Miss Gertrude Walsh, and Edward R. Handman. The marriage will take place at St. Margaret's Church, Oct. 26, upon the arrival of Mr. Handman from the "army's" summer home in Oconomowoc, Wis. Mr. Handman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Handman of 464 Lindell boulevard.

Mrs. Powhatan H. Clarke, her son, Powhatan and her sister, Miss Mary Clemons, have returned from their summer home in Chester, Nova Scotia, and have taken apartments at the Buckingham Hotel.

Mrs. C. O. Skidmore and her daughter, Miss Edith Skidmore, have returned after an absence of eight months in the West and are visiting Mrs. Ewing Hill Jr. in the Kingsbury apartments until they take possession of their own apartment at 421 Westminister place.

Mrs. C. Bent Carr of 4358 Cabanne avenue and her daughter, Miss Fannie Carr, who have been in Coburg, Ont., all summer have gone to Atlantic City, N. J., to spend several weeks.

Among the latest arrivals from Europe are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schaefer, who came on the Laconia, Sept. 9. They are in St. Louis to stay until the winter in Europe is over.

Mrs. Schaefer was formerly Miss Mary Lackland, the daughter of the late Rufus J. Lackland.

They are stopping at the Buckingham Annex.

Visitors are advised not to miss the Society of Applied Arts, 3612 Washington boulevard, one of the show places of the city. Easily and quickly reached by Olive, Page or Grand cars.—ADV.

Miss Anabel Nulsen, daughter of Mrs. Minnie Nulsen of 229 Longfellow boulevard, has returned from Chicago, where she has been visiting since leaving the Nulsen summer home at Gratiot Beach, Mich.

Miss Edna Hennkens of 2302 St. Vincent avenue, departed Sunday for Denver, Colo., to visit friends.

JEANETTE DUNNE WALKS
CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Jeanette Dunne, 12 years old, daughter of Gov. and Mrs. Edward F. Dunne of Illinois, walked for the first time in her life today.

The child, suffering from an affection of the spine since birth, underwent an unusual operation in which surgeons transplanted a piece of her hip bone to her spine, replacing a defective vertebra.

The operation, performed in a hospital here six weeks ago, was pronounced successful.

LABOR EDITOR WHO KILLED A STRIKE GUARD IS FREED

Illinois Jury Returns Verdict for Carl Person After Deliberating 24 Hours.

By Associated Press.
LINCOLN, Ill., Oct. 5.—Carl Person, editor of a labor magazine, was found not guilty yesterday of the murder of Antonio Musser, former Chief of Police of Clinton, Ill. The jury reached the verdict after it had deliberated 24 hours and had taken 22 ballots.

The verdict was received by T. M. Harris, Circuit Judge, in the absence of W. K. Whitfield, Circuit Judge, of Decatur, who heard the case.

Both Person and Frank Comerford, chief counsel for the defense, thanked the jury.

"Gentlemen, I thank you," Person said, "in the names of 35,000 Illinois Central employees on strike."
Person declared indictments in the State and Federal Courts against him for libel would be met.

Person admitted shooting Musser, but offered as a defense that he had been lured into the danger by a telephone call and that he shot in self-defense.

The case grew out of the strike of machinists of the Illinois Central Railroad. Musser was employed by the road as a guard and the enmity grew out of articles on the strike written by Person. The shooting occurred Dec. 30, 1913, and Person was held in jail in Clinton until June, when he was brought to Chicago and released on bail. Labor unions interested themselves in his defense.

Father, Out of Work, Can't Pay for Baby's Burial.

James Vandere of 146 Pine street carried the body of his 4-week-old baby boy to the morgue this morning. He told the police he had no money with which to bury it. With his wife and two other children Vandere lives in an attic. He has been out of work for four weeks and said he had only enough money to buy food for the next few days. The baby died last night while his parents were asleep.

NEW DANGERS OF CONSTIPATION

The New York Times of January 14, 1913, contains an article by Prof. Metchnikoff and others have led doctors to suppose that many conditions of chronic health, nervous debility, rheumatism and other disorders are due to constipation. It has even been suggested that the lowering of the vitality resulting from such poisoning is favorable to the development of Cancer and Tuberculosis.

"At Glenview, Ill., a William Arbuthnot Lane decided on the heroic plan of removing the diseased portion of the colon in the final stage of what was believed to be an incurable form of tubercular disease was operated on. An intestine with the exception of nine inches was removed, and the portion left was joined to the other intestine."

"The result was astonishing. In a week's time the internal organs resumed all their normal functions and in a few weeks the patient was apparently in perfect health."

"The intestines can be put into this condition by the use of the 'J. B. L. Cascade' cathartic. It cleanses the intestines in their entire length thoroughly with pure warm water and removes all this poisonous waste which is such a menace to health."

"The 'J. B. L. Cascade' is now being shown and explained by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., 115 Olive, Seventh and Locust, Broadway and Washington, St. Louis, who are also distributing an interesting booklet called 'Why Man of Today is Only 50 Per Cent Healthy.' There is no charge for this. Ask for it.—ADV."

Late Arrivals in Dinner Sets

Include New Open-stock Patterns

We have recently added to our very large stock of Dinner Ware four very attractive, new, open-stock patterns in American Semi-porcelain Dinner Sets. They are priced as follows, and your inspection is invited.

One is a genuine reproduction of a Minton decoration in beautiful shades of pink and modeled after the latest shapes. You may select item by item, or in sets of 100 pieces at $18.45

A second very pleasing decoration is a delicate design of pink roses and green leaves on a band of rich royal blue. Sets of 100 pieces are decidedly inexpensive and are priced at $19.90

A third set is unique and in quaintly modeled shapes, with a new conventional decoration; half-mat gold handles. This can be bought item by item or in 100-piece sets for $24.25

The last of these new sets is made in plain shapes, with floral border effect in pink and brown, and with traced gold handles. It is an open-stock pattern and may be bought item by item or in 100-piece sets at $18.35

Attend the Ideal Fireless Cooker Demonstration

This week there is a special demonstration of the well-known Ideal Fireless Cooker in our Basement.

AUTO STRIKES ROCK PILE IN DARK, TWO MEN ARE INJURED

Joseph Lange, a saloon keeper of 1000 Sidney street, and Charles Foster, a supervisor for the Terminal Association, living at 204 South Tenth street, were seriously injured when an automobile owned and driven by Lange was overturned in a collision with a rock pile on Eighteenth street, just south of Park avenue, about 1:30 o'clock this morning.

Lange was taken to the city hospital, where it was found his left leg was broken. Foster was treated by physicians in the neighborhood. His left arm was fractured and he was cut over the left eye.

A boy left in charge of the automobile of Alex. Frankenthal of the Buckingham Annex while the latter was watching the ball game at Robinson Field yesterday, played with the mechanism until he accidentally started the car. It ran into the machine in front of it, the property of the Clayton Lumber Co., and the lumber concern's car hit the one ahead of it, belonging to Fred H. Harris of 37 Clara avenue and Harris' machine collided with the one ahead, the property of Clarence J. Kuefer, 2801 Park avenue.

When the Frankenthal car was stopped by a chauffeur the boy had disappeared. The damage to the autos was estimated at $150.

The automobile of Roy Tilles, 581 Berlin avenue, stolen from in front of his residence Saturday night, was found yesterday on the Natural Bridge road, about a quarter of a mile west of Carondelet, stripped of everything but the body and two tires.

Thieves Strip Auto.
Emile D. R. Brown of 418 E. 14th avenue, whose auto was driven away from Fourth and Olive streets Saturday, recovered part of the outfit yesterday on the Manchester road, a mile beyond the city limits. Two wheel rims with tires and inner tubes were missing.

The automobile of Harry J. Symons of 2803 Greer avenue, stolen from Grand and Delmar avenues Saturday night, was found yesterday in front of the home of John Reenan, 414 Hunt avenue. Reenan informed the police that two men got out of the car about midnight Saturday.

Dr. G. W. Tremaine of 2847 Olive street told the police his car was driven away from in front of a Sixth street theater about 9 o'clock last night. Two hours later it was found at Jefferson avenue and Morgan street undamaged.

When police arrived at the scene of the accident, the automobile was on its side. There were three signal lamps on the rock pile, one of which was smashed and the other two were extinguished. Lange said he saw no lights burning.

GENERAL MEXICAN PEACE CONFERENCE IS SET FOR OCT. 10

Chamber of Deputies Decides on Meeting of Representatives of Villa and First Chief.

CARRANZA NAMES TERMS

He Offers to Resign if Majority of Army Leaders Ask It, but Not to a Group.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 5.—Representatives of Venustiano Carranza and Francisco Villa will meet in a general peace conference at Aguascalientes, Oct. 10. This decision was reached last night by unanimous vote at a session of the Chamber of Deputies.

A conference will be held today to fix the date of the departure of the peace delegates for Aguascalientes and also to arrange the matter of civilian participation in the peace conference. Carranza named terms.

Charging that the rebellion in Northern Mexico was instigated by the so-called "cientificos" and "our conquered enemies," Gen. Carranza, in his statement to the convention of Constitutional leaders here, offered to resign as "first chief" if a majority of the military chiefs desired it, but declared he would not submit to a group of chiefs who had forgotten the fulfillment of their duty and to a group of civilians to whom the nation owed nothing.

"If I have not tried to conquer this rebel force by force of arms it has been on account of prudence, which the circumstances demanded. But the nation must know that if we reach a stage where it is impossible to otherwise suppress their rebellion, we have 100,000 men well armed and artillery and machine guns; also we have right and justice, which are invincible, on our side."

Responsibility for Rebellion.
Gen. Carranza said it was his duty to "fix the responsibility of the rebellion on Gen. Villa, which is nothing but a plot instigated by the so-called 'cientificos' and by our conquered enemies, who have not received public offices on account of incompetency and cowardice."

In his statement Gen. Carranza outlined proposed reforms, reviewed at length recent internal troubles in Sonora and Durango, which preceded the break with Villa, and declared the convention which he was addressing was the fulfillment of the plan of Guadalupe.

Pot-Shooting Features Naco Battle.
NACO, Ariz., Oct. 5.—Pot-shooting by both sides to the battle of the day of the battle of Naco, Mexico, across the boundary. Gov. Maytorena's troops so far have made no progress. Gen. Gil, commanding the Carranza garrison, reported his losses up to daylight today as six killed and eight wounded.

One of Maytorena's gun crews fired a shrapnel today. The shell burst within Maytorena's own lines. Officers of the American border patrol report Gil's machine gun fire as effective.

Private Wilson of Troop G, Tenth U. S. Cavalry, who was wounded by a stray Mexican bullet yesterday, was taken to Fort Huachuca today. His wound is said to be slight.

Mexican agents on this side of the line reported today that J. E. A. Campbell, one of Gen. Gil's officers, made a sortie last night with a small detachment and captured 25 of Maytorena's Yaqui Indians. All were immediately shot.

Sullivan News Washington on Hurling Trip From Mexico.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—John R. Sullivan, Consul at Saltillo, and President Wilson's personal representative in Mexico, has not advised the President of the object of the hurried trip he is making to Washington. He asked the State Department for permission to come without saying why, and is expected here by tomorrow, having passed through St. Louis yesterday.

Officials here were awaiting with interest today further reports from the peace conference at Aguascalientes. Little attention is being paid to the fighting around Naco between Gov. Maytorena and Gen. Gil.

BattleShip Minnesota Sails for PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 5.—The battleship Minnesota, flagship of the Fourth division of the Atlantic fleet, sailed from the Philadelphia navy yard yesterday for Mexican waters. The vessel had been at the local navy yard about a week undergoing repairs. When she sailed her bunkers were filled and she had aboard sufficient stores to last for six months.

DEMOCRATS TO CAUCUS ON WAR REVENUE BILL
Hope to Expedite Action on Final Revision of Measure by Senate Finance Committee.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Caucus action to expedite the passage of the war revenue bill through the Senate was practically agreed upon today by Democratic leaders after Democrats of the Finance Committee had completed their revision of the measure as it passed the House. Perfecting the stamp tax features, the committee determined to eliminate the proposed tax on casualty insurance, 50 cents per horsepower on automobile sales, $2 per thousand on bank capital and surplus, the special taxes on brokers, tobacco manufacturers and dealers and the old Spanish War stamp taxes. Some administration amendments have been made.

EXPLORER COMPLETES ALASKAN COAST CHARTS

Leffingwell Back From Arctic Tells of Passing Christmas With Stefansson.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Charles of the North Alaskan coast has been completed by Ernest de Koven Leffingwell of Pasadena, Cal., after a year alone in the Northern wastes, it was learned here today.

Leffingwell arrived home late yesterday on the whaler Jeannette. He journeyed north on the Mary Sacha, one of Stefansson's vessels, and returned with the word that two ships of the Canadian expedition which were frozen in last winter near Plesman Island, 5 miles from Leffingwell's headquarters, made their way to sea in July and are now on their way to Dominion waters.

Speaking of a visit from Stefansson, Leffingwell said today: "Early in December I was surprised on answering a knock at my door to see Stefansson stride into my cabin. I had supposed him to be hundreds of miles distant. "He and several of his party were encamped at Collinson Point. Later they sent a dog team to my camp and took me to their headquarters for Christmas. We exchanged several visits after that.

"When the ice broke up about the Karuk, Stefansson's ship, her seams were found open and she was abandoned, the explorer and his party embarking on one of the other vessels."

President Visits Cousins of Wife.
BALTIMORE, Oct. 5.—President Wilson motored to Baltimore yesterday afternoon and visited two cousins of his dead wife, the Misses Mary and Florence Hoyt. He returned to Washington in the evening.

Non-Stop Trip From New Zealand.
NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—What is said to be the first nonstop voyage from Auckland, New Zealand, to New York, was completed yesterday, when the White Star freighter Daphnis of the Australian service arrived here, after an uninterrupted voyage of 44 1/2 days.

"REALLY DOES" END ALL STOMACH TROUBLE AT ONCE—PAPE'S DIAPEPSIN.

Time it! In five minutes all stomach distress gone. No indigestion, heartburn, sourness or belching of gas, acid, or eructations of undigested food, no dizziness, bloating, foul breath or headache.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in regulating upset stomachs. It is the surest, quickest stomach doctor in the whole world, and besides, it is harmless.

Millions of men and women now eat their favorite foods without fear—they know it is needless to have a bad stomach.

Get a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store and put your stomach right. Stop being miserable—life is too short—you're not here long, so make your stay agreeable. Eat what you like and digest it; enjoy it, without fear of rebellion in the stomach.

Pape's Diapepsin belongs in your home. Should one of the family eat something which doesn't agree with them, or in case of an attack of indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis or stomach derangement, it is handy to give instant relief.—ADV.

EVENING AND DINNER GOWNS, DANCING FROCKS, AFTER-NOON AND STREET DRESSES, WORTH UP TO $59.50 FOR

$15.00

YES—There's a reason for such extreme underpricing. In fact, there are two reasons in this instance.

First. They are manufacturers' show room samples, which, as in all such cases, having served their purpose, the manufacturer always makes a clean sweep—a quick disposal—at a mere fraction of their value.

Second. Some of these gowns are slightly mussed from displaying—in a few the white lining around the shoulders and bust are a little soiled.

'MME. PRESIDENT' RISKY TRAVELS ON VERY THIN ICE

But Fannie Ward and Her Company Present Daring French Farce With Keen Humor.

By RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS.
FANNIE WARD, once Fannie DuChamps of St. Louis and now a distinctly clever comedienne of Anglo-American fame and South African wealth, gave a very good account of herself in "Madam President" at the Olympic Theater on Sunday evening, supported by a company so capable that it would have taken first honors away from her if she had not been equal to meeting a strong competitive test.

The play itself, a farce from the French of Maurice Hennequin and Pierre Vabre, is personally risque in its treatment of more or less forbidden situations and it keeps the star and her associates skating on alarmingly thin ice most of the time.

The thin ice, however, has the true Gallic sparkle and, also, the Gallic shrewdness in manufacture, inasmuch as it is never quite permitted to break and thereby envelop the story in the occasionally perceptible undercurrent of contaminated dramatic waters.

This typically French story frankly concerns itself with an "affair" between one Gobette, a charming Parisian actress, and M. Cyprien Gaudet, French Minister of Justice, whom Gobette encounters at the home of M. Galloux, President of the tribunal of a provincial village, where she finds it necessary to report after having disturbed the peace by a "rowdy supper" at her hotel the night before.

Owing to a sudden and ingeniously contrived farce complication, Gobette is obliged to impersonate Mrs. Galloux for the hoodwinking of the visiting Minister of Justice, and all the play's action thereafter arises from this necessary deception in old President Galloux's behalf. The action thus compelled is swift and cunningly tangled, its progress marked by a succession of absurd happenings that keeps the audience in an almost unbroken mood of laughter or diverted chuckling.

Miss Ward plays the role of Gobette with genuine distinction in farce, her touches light and of delicate emphasis, and she contrives to give the character a joyous magnetism that warmly commends it to the house's favor. She has an excellent playing companion in John W. Dean, cast as the Minister of Justice, who brings to that part a pleasing finish of good breeding and delightful bearing which, in addition to the appeal of an attractive stage presence, makes it one of the evening's most notable figures.

There are moments in the second act when the always highly competent W. J. Ferguson, one of the most resourceful character actors on the American stage, distinctly threatens the primacy of Miss Ward as the real star of the performance, so relishful in fun is his portrait of M. Galloux, chief usher at the Ministry, whose chosen mission in life, as a native of the South of France, is to make trouble for the Minister of Justice, who chances to hail from the North.

Nevertheless, Miss Ward holds her own in this act, and as the Marquis of Ferguson's playing thereafter disappears from the story, she is emphatically in the foremost position at the play's finish.

The competent and well-cast company includes Harry J. Ashford as Galloux; Frank Dawson, Oliver Ramsdell and William Levis, as village magistrates; Amy Lee, as Mme. Galloux; Alice Kelly, as Denise, Galloux's daughter; Charles Latet, as Octave Rosamond, secretary to Minister Gaudet; Harriet Trench, as Sophie, the Gobette; George Brennan, as Benessee, a Ministry clerk; Emily Hampton, as Yvonne, an old flame of Gaudet's; Jack J. Horwitz, as Poche, a policeman, and others in minor roles.

"HELP WANTED" AT SHUBERT.
Jack Lait's play, "Help Wanted," which opened a week's engagement last night at the Shubert Theater, is an attempt in three acts to give a serious version of the burlesque ditty, "Heaven Will Protect the Working Girl," but at moments its mock heroics and mushiness make it unintentionally almost as ludicrous as the song.

However, the play affords a vehicle for Henry Kolker's popular talents in comedy and melodrama. It matters not at all to his admirers that he is required to portray the highly improbable role of Jerrald R. Scott—that of a warm-hearted scoundrel, a philanthropist and a Don Juan, an affectionate husband and father who is also a cynical and resolute villain. Kolker has died over these discrepancies of character with immense agility and zest, as if quite unconscious that they existed.

As the action begins, Scott is arranging to pay $2000 to fend off a damage suit threatened by his last stenographer, but the gay old rake is already casting about for her successor. A parade of applicants passes through his office, the biased, the impertinent, the pathetic and the earnest types being cleverly contrasted. From this array he picks 17-year-old Gertrude Meyer, an incompetent typist, but an ingenious and incredibly unsophisticated as to believe that she is paid an unusual salary for her work and not for her pretty face, and that her rich employer, out of purely fatherly interest, takes her to luncheon every day and lingers two or three hours over the meal.

It is a rather unpleasant device which causes Scott's stepson, Jack Scott, to fall in love with the awkward girl's prospective victim. Although the Junior member of the firm of Scott & Son, Jack is the last person in the office to become aware of the senior member's machinations against his pretty secretary. The youth has proposed and been accepted before the awakening comes. He hears his fiancée scream, and bursting through the locked door of his stepfather's private office, finds him crushing the girl in his arms and kissing her. Kolker arose with energy to the possibility of this scene depicting comedy with violence payable to the gallery gods—if there had been any—the roue ex-

PLAYGOERS' GUIDE.

Fannie Ward in "Madam President," cleverly constructed farce from the French, quite risque at times, but cautiously shielded against too pronounced frankness. Admirably played by star and company.

"Help Wanted" with Henry Kolker. Shubert. Strong drama, treating a serious war-topic with apparent restraint. Effectively played, but occasionally too mock-heroic and "mushy."

"The Ambassadors," American. Strong heart-interest drama.

"Mlle. Modiste," Park. Bright and tuneful musical comedy.

"The Deep Purple," Shubert. Joseph Paul Armstrong's weakly constructed melodrama well played.

Vanderbilt, Columbia. Bill headed by Mercedes in feats of psychic mystery.

Vanderbilt, Grand. Bill headed by David Walters and company in "Salvation Rue."

Bill headed by Sinar Arabs, whirlwind acrobats.

All-New Yiddish Co. in "Who Was Guilty?" Garrick Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings.

Oris of Moula Rouge, Princess. Extravaganza and vaudeville.

Big Sensation Co. Standard. Burlesque and vaudeville.

Delany, Mads Co. Gayety. Burlesque and vaudeville.

Edith Barrymore in "The Nightingale." New Grand Central. Photoplay.

"The Littlest Rebel." Victoria. Photoplay version of successful Civil War drama.

"Que Vadis" Lindell. Photoplay version of Sienkiewicz novel.

posed and defiant, the rogue baffled, furious and vindictive. With a blow of his cane the angry old rascal smashes the glass pane bearing the title, "Scott & Son." The heroine is fired on the spot, and Jack is to be cut off without a penny unless he comes to his senses and gives up the girl.

Of course, it all ends well, for the untutored working girl miraculously wins in a moment the hearts of Jack's mother and sister, proud society women though they be, and a threat from Gertrude's mother to sue him for damages quickly brings the elder Scott to terms. He remarks ruefully that in the future he will have only stenographers and not private secretaries, and gives direction to employ a girl from the Y. W. C. A., who has shown herself completely capable of taking care of herself.

As a whole, the cast is competent. Minor parts excellently utilized are those of Dorothy Williams, a thoroughly "wise" stenographer of the gun-chewing breed, played by Miss Alice Patek; of Mrs. Meyer, Gertrude's laundress mother, played by Miss Lillian Elliott; and Crane, a bookkeeper, played by James Corrigan. Charles Ruggles, as Jack Scott, is a romantic and headlong young lover.

DIRECTORS FAVOR MAKING CONTRACTS TO KEEP SYMPHONY

Believe That $5600 Subscriptions Up to Noon Indicate That Deficit Will Be Met.

Members of the Symphony Society Executive Committee, who met at noon at Faust's restaurant to decide whether subscriptions to the $15,000 deficit this season were sufficient to warrant the retention of the Symphony Orchestra again this year, said before the meeting they were in favor of going ahead with the work.

Subscriptions received in the early mail this morning brought the total of the four-day campaign for funds to about $5000. The committee may decide that this showing indicates enough will be subscribed in the next few days to justify instructions to Manager Arthur J. Gaines to sign contracts with the orchestra members. Oct. 5 was announced as the date on which the committee would be forced to either abandon its work for the season or enter into contracts involving approximately $50,000.

Herbert S. Morris, 554 Barter avenue, notified the Post-Dispatch today that he would contribute $25 to the guarantee fund.

Manager Gaines announced shortly before noon that the following subscriptions, bringing the total to $5142.25, had been received today: Mrs. Kate M. Howard, $100; B. F. Bush, president Missouri Pacific Railway, $100; Mrs. H. Blakely Collins, $50; J. E. Montague, $25; Edward R. Love, $10; Albert T. Terry, $25; C. Van Brunt, $5; Miss A. V. Henkel, $5; Gouverneur Calhoun, $5; Harry Elliot, $50; Mrs. E. C. Runge, $1, and Mrs. Clara Meyer, $15.

Mrs. Orson E. Scott, president of the College Club, informed the symphony management today that she has requested every member of the club to devote an hour each day to telephoning friends and inviting them to subscribe to the guarantee fund.

BUY-A-BALE COMMITTEE GETS ORDERS FROM EAST

Two Come From New York and One From New Jersey—Cotton Subscriptions Total 4489.

Subscriptions for eight bales of cotton were received today by the Buy-a-Bale Committee of the Business Men's League.

The subscriptions were as follows: Louis Stockle, Lammert Furniture Co., one bale; Ziegler, Edman & Co., Newark, N. J., 5 bales; William Carroll & Co., New York, 1 bale; Charles G. Phillips, United Publishers' Corporation, New York, 1 bale.

This makes the total to date, 4489 bales.

Fewer Swiss Embroideries Imported.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Oct. 4.—George N. Ifft, American Consul at St. Gall, reports that in September the exportation of Swiss embroideries to the United States amounted to $200,000, nearly $200,000 less than in September, 1913.

$250,000 U. S. WIRELESS STATION ON BIG CANAL

Second of Chain of Panama Isthmus Towers for Communication With Far East Completed.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—At a cost of a quarter of a million dollars the Navy Department has just completed, at Darien, on the Isthmus of Panama, the second station of a chain of wireless towers expected to maintain communication between the great Arlington station and Central America, California, Hawaii, Samoa, Guam and the Philippines.

This new tower is composed of three 60-foot structures, forming a triangle or a 200-foot base. The other links of the chain will be completed rapidly as soon as the necessary fortification can be constructed to defend them against attack.

BANKER'S SON INJURED IN MOTOR CYCLE CRASH

Oliver Heller, Student at Cornell, Thrown From Rear Seat as Machine Strikes Rocks.

August H. Heller, cashier of the Bremer Bank, 300 North Broadway, received a telegram last night informing him that his son, Oliver, a student at Cornell, was seriously injured yesterday in a motor cycle accident near Ithaca, N. Y.

Heller said this morning the message stated his son's condition was serious but there was a possibility of his recovery. He suffered a probable fracture of the skull, severe cuts on the head and a broken wrist when the motor cycle struck a pile of rocks in the road. Young Heller was riding on the rear seat of the motor cycle, which was owned and driven by Victor Anneke, another student. Young Heller graduated from Yearman High School in 1910. He gained prominence in athletics.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—An endeavor to bring the city's school children into closer touch with the art museum has been undertaken by the Board of Education, which has announced its approval of the appointment by the school art league of Miss Helen Greenleaf as a visiting teacher to make the rounds of city school classrooms.

Miss Greenleaf takes her paint box to schools and explains how an artist paints pictures, and tells them of the paintings in the museums. Then she takes the children in parties of thirty to the museums.

LA FOLLETTE REFUSES TO RUN FOR GOVERNOR

People of Wisconsin Have Assigned Him to Senate—He Replies to Progressives.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 5.—In a final reply to Wisconsin Progressives today, Senator La Follette declared he would not be an independent candidate for Governor. Suggesting his reasons, the Senator, in a telegram of refusal says in part:

"The primary vote was small and the nomination was by a minority and involved a complete reversal of the established policy of the State. For these reasons it has been my personal opinion that there ought to be an independent candidate. But I do not think these facts warrant a public official, who has been elected to serve in another capacity, in becoming an independent candidate on the call of a voluntary conference without action of the voters on which to predicate such candidacy."

AUTO SHOW OPENS TONIGHT; 275 NEW MODELS ON EXHIBIT

Display at Forest Park Highlands Includes 225 Pleasure Cars, 50 Trucks, Wagons.

There are 275 motor cars, 1915 models, at Forest Park Highlands, where all is in readiness for the opening at 7 o'clock tonight of the eighth annual auto show. Of this number 225 are pleasure cars, gasoline and electric, and 50 are motor trucks and delivery wagons.

St. Louis has the distinction, this year, of showing 1915 models three months ahead of any other city in the country. No other public automobile show will be held until January, when the New York show is scheduled. St. Louis holds the only fall automobile show in the country and almost all manufacturers made special efforts to be represented in this premier showing.

Decorations for the exhibit stalls with signs stating the name of the exhibitor and the car exhibited, were in place yesterday. In the afternoon the dealers began placing the cars in the park.

Every dealer in St. Louis is represented, with the exception of possibly a half-dozen who found it impossible to obtain 1915 models in time for the fall show.

A feature of the exhibition is the accessory display, showing every new and novel accessory attachment for an automobile. There are 144 front feet of these displays, with a frontage of from five to 15 feet each and a depth of nine feet.

Lower-Priced Models.
There is a display of tops for motor cars and bodies in the accessory department. Three garages for private grounds, two of them of wood and the other of sheet metal, are shown.

The new motor designs include an eight-cylinder engine. There are new types in bodies and a showing of much improved models by makers hitherto of only high-priced cars.

The show has been laid out into a "park driveway," on either side of which cars are displayed attractively, giving the appearance of an immense parking of cars in a public park.

Open 11 A. M. to 11 P. M.
The Show Committee has added 3000 60-candle-power lamps to the already brilliant lighting of Forest Park Highlands, and 40 arc lights have been installed in the open park.

Beginning tomorrow and continuing until Saturday night, the Auto Show will be open from 11 a. m. until 11 p. m. The exhibitors' ball will be given Friday, beginning at 10 p. m. and lasting until 1 a. m.

WOMAN DIES FROM BURNS; HER SKIRT CAUGHT FIRE

Draft Blows Garment Into Fire She Is Kindling in an Open Grate.

Mrs. Mary Grassmuck, 55 years old, of 1208A North Broadway, died at the Deaconess Hospital last night of injuries received when her clothing caught fire at an open grate in her home yesterday morning. She was kindling the fire when the draft drew her skirt into the flames.

Her son, William Grassmuck, 27 years old, attempted to extinguish the flames and his hands were badly burned. He is under treatment at the hospital where his mother died.

Mrs. Grassmuck's mother was burned to death in a gasoline stove explosion in the same house more than 30 years ago.

QUAKE IN ASIATIC TURKEY; LOSS OF LIFE REPORTED

Two Towns, Center of the Carpet Industry, Are Severely Damaged.

SMYRNA, Asiatic Turkey, Oct. 4, via London, Oct. 5.—The towns of Isartia (population about 26,000) and Burdur (population about 12,000) in the Province of Konia, were severely damaged by an earthquake last night at midnight. The loss of life was very heavy. These two towns are centers of the carpet industry.

PAINTED INDIANS HELP DISPERSE I. W. RIOTERS

GLASGOW, Mont., Oct. 5.—Indians, in feathers and blankets, disguised Industrial Workers of the World itinerants whose clashes Saturday cost four lives when the police from a reservation near Poplar, Mont., were called. A celebration was on and all were gaily with paint and decorations.

Saturday's troubles arose from I. W. W. internal dissensions. The bullet, which killed A. J. Giantvalley, a civil engineer of St. Paul, Minn., was a stray one. The other three victims were members of the band. Giantvalley was to have been married in St. Paul, Oct. 26.

MAN STABS HIS WIFE

Mrs. Marina Bents, 35 years old, cook in a boarding house at 117 South Seventh street, was stabbed in the right breast by her husband, Andrew Bents of Granite City, when she stepped into the back yard of the boarding house to get some water about 4:30 o'clock this morning. She was sent to the city hospital, where it was found the wound had penetrated her lung.

Mrs. Bents had been separated from her husband for two months and he had threatened to kill her, she told the police.

MRS. WAGONER IN A SORTIE BREAKS 114 HOURS' SIEGE

Undertaker's Wife Leaves Citadel to Go to Court, but Parley Is Postponed.

Mrs. Lulu Wagoner, after being besieged for 114 hours by her husband, George C. R. Wagoner, an undertaker, in her home at 4187 Lindell boulevard, escaped through the rear and started for the front at 8:30 a. m. Monday.

After reaching the headquarters of her legal staff, she was advised to remain away from the dining line until her forces completed a turning movement.

A hearing on Mrs. Wagoner's motion that her husband be enjoined from taking possession of the Wagoner citadel was scheduled in Judge Fisher's peace tribunal, but was postponed indefinitely because of the absence of her husband's chief of staff, Arthur N. Sager, on detached service.

Wagoner and his allies, consisting of his mother and his sister-in-law, Mrs. H. Wagoner, were in court, ready to give the substance of the "white papers" which led up to the hostilities. They expressed great disappointment when George T. Priest, on behalf of the allies, told the Court he deemed it advisable to await Sager's return before unlimbering the heavy artillery.

Correspondents to Rescue. Wig-wag signals from the balcony of that portion of the citadel where Mrs. Wagoner has been a prisoner attracted the attention of war correspondents at 5 a. m. Mrs. Wagoner's faithful army, Mary Schwarz, leaned from the casement window, saying:

"Please get a ladder somewhere and put it up here. Mrs. Wagoner wants to get out so she can go to court."

The correspondents went out in extended order and returned a few minutes later in solid formation, carrying a heavy ladder.

"Put it up and wait," said Mary Schwarz. "Mrs. Wagoner is parleying with one of the guards. Maybe he'll let her out."

Appears on Front Lawn. A few minutes later Mrs. Wagoner appeared on the front lawn. She said a Mr. King who had been left on guard by Wagoner had permitted her to leave the house. She went to the home of Dr. G. A. Jordan at 4181 Lindell boulevard and remained there a few minutes.

When she came out to start to court, she found a battery of war cameras leveled at her and made a tactical retreat into the house. When she thought the war correspondents were not looking she slipped out through the alley gate of the Jordan home and walked north on Whittier street to Olive street, where she boarded a street car for downtown.

Attorneys Sue Union Trust Co. for $10,000. Klein and Hough Say Sum Is Due for Services in Litigation Over Curby Will.

The law firm of Klein & Hough today filed suit for $10,000 against the St. Louis Union Trust Co. It alleges this amount is due for legal services in connection with litigation to construe the will of Joseph L. Curby, who was a director of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. The St. Louis Union Trust Co. was trustee under Curby's will.

Curby left a portion of his estate in trust for his son, Joseph L. Curby Jr., with the understanding it was to revert to the other heirs at the son's death. Mrs. Bridget Calhane, mother of Joseph L. Curby Jr., claimed a share in the estate and the St. Louis Trust Co. filed a suit to have the will construed. The Court in 1909 ruled that Mrs. Calhane was entitled to $80,000.

Since the case was decided Judge Jacob Klein, senior member of the firm of Klein & Hough, has died. His heirs are named with his partner, Warwick M. Hough, in the suit for attorneys' fees.

USES MARKED BILLS TO TRAP WEEK-END VISITOR. St. Louis School Janitor Arrested in Belleville on Cousin's Husband's Complaint.

Adolph Buehl's week-end visits to his cousin's home at Belleville resulted last night in his arrest on a charge of larceny, preferred by John Stoeber of 632 State street, Belleville, a coal miner and husband of Buehl's cousin. Buehl is janitor of the Garfield school, Jefferson avenue and Wyoming street, St. Louis.

Stoeber said he had missed money from the house many times. He left four marked $1 bills in a book Saturday night before Buehl arrived. They were gone the next morning. Stoeber gave the numbers to a saloon keeper nearby.

When Buehl presented a dollar bill in payment for a drink, it is alleged, he gave one of the marked bills. Buehl waived a preliminary hearing and was bound over to the grand jury in $200 bail.

GIRL, CAUGHT TELLING FALSEHOOD, TAKES POISON. Anna Berger, 18 years old, of 264 Gustine avenue, caught in a falsehood, swallowed a mercury tablet last night to end her life. She was taken to the city hospital in a serious condition.

Last Thursday she remained away from home all night and the next day told her parents she was at the home of a girl friend in Pine Lawn, whose mother, she said, was ill. The following night, she was again absent and when she repeated the story about her friend's mother, her sister, Carrie Berger, investigated and found the story untrue.

About 8:30 p. m., Anna's mother told her to prepare the table for supper. Instead, the girl went to her room and took the poison.

The two-day's charity carnival at Delmar Garden under the auspices of the German and Austro-Hungarian Relief Committee ended last night. The attendance yesterday was even larger than that of Saturday night. Members of the committee said more than $30,000 had been obtained for the wounded and the widows and children of German and Austrian soldiers.
The greater part of the money received was from the sale of small iron crosses, replicas of the decoration bestowed by the Kaiser for deeds of valor on the battlefield. Christian Hauck purchased a diamond cross for $150. The small crosses sold from 25 cents to $10.
The program yesterday included folk dances in costume by members of Bavarian and Austro-Hungarian societies and a play, "The Iron Cross." The speakers of the afternoon were Mayor Kiel, Dr. J. Schwegel, the Rev. E. Richter, the Rev. Joseph Lubeley, Henry A. Kersting and Jacob E. Meeker.

TAMPERING WITH EVIDENCE IN OPIUM CASE IS REPORTED

Drug Removed From Pans Seized in Raid at Alcazar Hotel, Officials Find.

DEPUTY SHERIFF INVOLVED

He Is Said to Have Asked Assistant District Attorney to Drop Charges.

When John Roach, alias Reilly, charged with selling opium illegally, was arraigned for preliminary hearing in the United States District Court Saturday, detectives to Chief Alender today, that a stepman partially filled with opium, part of the evidence against him, had been tampered with and the opium scraped out.

A report was also made to Alender that one of Sheriff Dickmann's Deputies had attempted to have the case against Roach dismissed.

Roach was arrested at 3 a. m. Sept. 18 by detectives who raided his room at the Alcazar Hotel, 327 Locust street. They seized an opium layout and several stepmans, in one of which, according to their report, was partially cooked opium. A warrant was issued against Roach and his case turned over to the United States District Court. The exhibits were sent to the Federal Building.

When, at the preliminary hearing Saturday, the stepman was found empty. It was suggested that the contents might have been absorbed by the wrappings, which were stained, but the detectives were sure that the pan had been scraped.

Several persons testified to Roach's good character, but he was bound over to $1500 bond.

Detective Albert Wetzel reported to Chief Alender that Assistant District Attorney Homer Hall told him that Deputy Sheriff named Brady had interfered for Roach, had told Hall that the detectives were framing up a case against Roach and had asked that the case be dismissed. Hall, Wetzel said, ordered Brady from his office.

Roach has been arrested nine times in Chicago but has not been convicted. He told Chief Alender that he smoked opium but did not sell it. In his room, when arrested, was also found a fake poolroom outfit.

BRITISH RESUME BUYING HORSES IN THIS MARKET

French Are Purchasing 350 Chevaux Daily, but Germans Have Not Bought Any Pferde.

Dealers at the National Stockyards were still selling horses to the British and the French today. Thus far the Germans have not bought any Pferde in this market.

After stating out of the market for a week the British agents again were active and their purchases for the day amounted to about 300 horses. They have orders to buy 10,000 and have a contract with one firm to supply 500 horses a week.

The French also are buying at the rate of about 350 horses a day. The agents were instructed to make their purchases in the St. Louis, Chicago, Kansas City and Indianapolis markets, but they say they have found prices here so favorable that they may make all of their purchases here. They have instructions to buy 4000 horses in America.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Music With Popular Appeal.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
I have read, with considerable interest, a number of articles pertaining to the possible loss of St. Louis of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. I have been a subscriber to this enterprise and have attended a large number of concerts, regular, as well as the Sunday Popular and believe that I am voicing the sentiment of a great majority of people who would gladly support an institution of this kind by their attendance, when I say that the only way that they can be successful financially is by entertaining the general public and not by trying to educate it by starting at the top.

In teaching a child to read it is necessary first to start in the primer with objects that it can readily understand. In educating the public to understand such music it is necessary to play music which they understand and appreciate and furnish the higher music when the demand develops. Music of this kind appeals to the public at large just about as much as reading Shakespeare to a 5-year-old.

The music which has been furnished by this institution is of the highest class and represents the highest development that has ever been reached by people who have devoted their lives to music, but unless one has devoted one's entire life to music it is not possible to understand and enjoy this kind of an entertainment without being bored. The method of subscription and guarantee funds is good, but it would not be needed with music furnished that the general public would like to hear and would gladly pay to hear. Such people as can enjoy the "futurist" discords of Du Bussey and the wonderful harmonies of Greig and Wagner are not sufficient in number to support a symphony orchestra.

Sunday popular concerts are crowded to the doors every Sunday, not because the price is only 50 cents, but because the music appeals to the public.

I, myself, am a music lover and have some considerable musical education, but would certainly not subscribe again to a series of concerts where only the heaviest music is played and where it is a difficult matter to remain awake. As soon as the Symphony Society arranges to provide and produce music which will appeal to the large majority and not only to the small class of artists and highly developed musical people just so soon will the concerts become popular and the organization self-supporting. AN EX-SUBSCRIBER.

Money Makes the Music Go.

Early in the nineteenth century, during the progress of the Peninsular War, the Duke of Wellington was asked by the home authorities what he needed most for the success of his campaign. He replied there were three things; money, and then money, and then more money. That is just about the situation of the Symphony Orchestra. We can get plenty of new music, plenty of good musicians, can make tours, can give extra concerts in St. Louis, and can do all sorts of things that come within the activities of the Symphony Orchestra, if we can only get a good-sized guarantee fund.

Particularly do I feel that this guarantee fund should be in the nature of a popular subscription, since no institution in these democratic days can hope for permanent success unless it gets close to the people. If we can only raise the guarantee fund to a sufficient amount, we can make the orchestra practically a part of the daily life of a great mass of the people in St. Louis and instead of an exotic luxury, be just as much a necessity and as much of an educational factor as any similar thing in art, literature or music.

A. W. DOUGLAS.

Union Labor and Free Bridge.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
In a recent issue I noticed a letter from "Free Bridge" which I will try to answer. Why do we demand St. Louis union labor on the bridge is what this gentleman wants to know. If this gentleman was an expert bridge builder, as he says, he would not doubt be in the union and not working for anything he could get. Mr. "Free Bridge" are you willing to pay taxes and leave men working for any amount they can get? While there are a few men on nonunion jobs who receive fair wages, you know it is a fact the average wage is considerably lower than on union jobs. Do you want your taxes to go into the large contractor's pocket or to pay a fair wage to the men that do the work? If you are an expert man who will not join the union? There is nothing to keep you from getting as much as you are worth. So many people have the mistaken idea that a union does not allow any man to take more than the minimum rate per hour. This is not true. A union is organized to better working conditions and to set a minimum wage; if any man can get more, bully for him. In unity there is strength—workers of the world unite—GEO. GUTJAHR.

SOUTHERN FRANCHISE REPEAL.

The demand of influential citizens and organizations for the repeal of the Southern Illinois Traction Co.'s franchise before the approaching bridge bond election forces on the Municipal Assembly an issue which has confused the public mind and done more than any other thing to defeat the bridge bonds in previous elections.

To retain the good features of the franchise, carry out its original intent and encourage the building of a line which would be valuable to St. Louis, the Post-Dispatch has persistently urged the amending of the ordinance providing for a shorter term and for municipal purchase at any time, but the amending effort has failed.

In view of the apparent hopelessness of amendment and of harmonizing public sentiment on the existing franchise we believe it would be wise to repeal the franchise ordinance for the following reasons:

1.—The completion of the bridge is paramount to all other considerations and interests. Every obstacle in the way of this vital necessity for municipal progress and the public welfare should be removed.

2.—The loop franchise was one of the principal factors in the defeat of previous bridge bond proposals. Many voters opposed the issue of bridge bonds on account of the loop franchise. Amendments to the franchise have failed to eradicate the opposition sentiment which is still strong enough to constitute a menace to the success of the bridge completion campaign. It is the only menace.

3.—The Southern Illinois Traction Co. is now bankrupt and in the hands of receivers. Its condition justifies the expectation that it will be unable for years to complete its line into St. Louis. Should the bridge be completed without the repeal of the franchise, its usefulness might be greatly impaired by the inability of the company to build the loop or its line. Should the bond issue be defeated, the franchise will be of no value to the city or the company. Both will lose.

4.—No real injury will be done the Southern Illinois Traction Co. by repeal because, on the admission of its officers, the value of the franchise, the use of which is open to all railroads under municipal regulations, rests upon the guarantee that it will have an entrance to St. Louis. Entrance to St. Louis is assured whenever the company may require it. The company is now dependent upon the city for permission to use the bridge.

5.—Under the new charter the city has the power to build the proposed loop and other terminal facilities for the bridge.

6.—Under the terms of the franchise ordinance the city reserved the right to alter, amend or repeal the franchise.

WHY WHISKY IS SPARED.

At last we learn why the Congress decided not to place additional war tax burdens on whisky. George Harvey lets the secret out in the current North American Review. It is, he says, because Congress believes whisky is already bearing all the tax burdens it can pay without being driven out of existence as a revenue producer. Any further levy, Mr. Harvey urges, would make whisky so expensive that even the prohibitionists would quit drinking it.

AS AN EMERGENCY MEASURE.

American business, broadly considered, has been worse scared than hurt by the European war.

It needs a tonic to quicken its circulation. How would it do to administer, as a brace, a moderate general advance in railroad freight rates, subject to one of the Interstate Commerce Commission's leisurely inquiries to determine what the rates should be?

Can anybody suggest anything else more likely to stiffen American credit abroad, and encourage that prompt revival of confidence, release of timid capital for industrial action, and resumption of employment which all Americans desire? The railroads need help—to offset the collapse of credits abroad.

There is hardly an American industry but would be benefited by the re-entrance of the railroads, cash in hand and confident, into the open markets, where they figure larger than any other factor as consumers.

President Wilson's own observance of the obligations of Peace Sunday was unusually complete. He made up with Col. Harvey and Col. Watterston.

OUR SOCIAL CAPITAL.

Patriotic women who seek to make Washington a social capital of refuge from war-saddened London, Paris and Berlin are meeting difficulties from which a grateful country should rescue them.

Materially, Washington is all right. Rock Creek Park is as beautiful as the Bois de Boulogne; fine hotels, broad avenues, spacious homes attract the luxury-loving. There are thousands of cultured residents, some few of whom are "in society" besides the floating population of diplomats and statesmen.

But what lack of social standards! A country 125 years old has not yet decided whether a Justice of the Supreme Court should tread on a Cabinet Minister's toe at a reception, or on his heel. Wives of Representatives are always claiming rank above the women folks of department officials, mere employees, and always handicapped by their number and precarious tenure. Even army and navy men are not ranked with accuracy for the drawing-room—though for business purposes they are.

Now, as a crowning misfortune, just as a patriotic effort is on for Washington as the social winter capital, comes the Federal Reserve Board! What shall social dictators do with it? What is a Federal Reserve Board, anyhow? Are its members mere scientists, obscure learned men to be put below the salt along with geologists and things, or are they Treasury officials—the reserve has to do with money, hasn't it?—and consequently to be treated with respect? The ladies want to know and they want to know now.

If Washington is to rise to its opportunities, an eighteenth amendment to the Constitution is badly needed. We need Federal regulation of festivities, a Master of the Revels.

AUTONOMY FOR THE PHILIPPINES.

We may believe that the force which events have lent to the congressional opposition to ultimate autonomy for the Philippines is of only temporary quality. The proposal is that after their instruction in self-government has gone on for some further time, they shall be permitted to work out their own destiny under treaties with the principal nations guaranteeing their neutrality.

For the moment such treaties seem of doubtful value. Japan did not hesitate to violate Chinese neutrality in seizing a landing place from which to proceed to the attack on Kiauchau. Germany disregarded the neutrality of both Luxemburg and Belgium.

But one of the great issues of the war is to determine whether such treaties are mere scraps of paper. The penal consequences of the violations may tend for all time to prevent their repetition. A hoped-for result is to give the neutral status a sanctity and permanence greater than it has ever had before.

Congressman Mann does not think that with the restoration of peace the world will have had enough fighting for a long time. He predicts a war for the control of the Pacific in which we shall be involved and urges the retention of the Philippines on the ground that, instead of being a military asset, they might be utilized by enemies to our disadvantage.

As good an argument can be made for the proposition that these far-off islands would be a source of weakness to us in war as for the proposition that they would be a source of strength. If what Mr. Mann says is true, we should not be content with merely keeping the Philippines. We should proceed at once to the subjugation of further Pacific islands for a more complete safeguarding of our interests when his inevitable conflict comes.

The autonomy question most positively is not one to be decided on the utility or inutility of the Philippines to us in case of war. If we are not justified in keeping them in peace, will we be justified in keeping them that we may draw on their resources in the event of war, that they may become a target for our enemies to strike at in striking at us, that they may be forced to share in the devastation brought to us by a war in which they may be only remotely concerned?

LABOR'S LONG STEP FORWARD.

Six International-American and Canadian-labor unions, representing 500,000 men engaged in the building trades, have agreed to settle their mutual disputes hereafter without calling strikes. A Board of Arbitration will adjust all jurisdictional issues.

The assumption of this obligation by the unions which undertake to control the labor supply in the building industry has been too long delayed. It is a long step forward. Some of the bitterest, most costly and exasperating strikes have arisen out of jurisdictional quarrels of the building trades unions.

Property owners, builders and contractors are to be congratulated upon the removal of this fertile source of embarrassments, and the men themselves are to be complimented upon having at last substituted peaceful arbitration for war in the adjustment of such differences.

WESTERN SIMPLICITY.

Secretary Bryan observed the thirtieth anniversary of his wedding day by telephoning Mrs. Bryan to come over to his office in the State Department and share with him the lunch which she prepared for him in the morning. Afterward they went for a drive.

Not the most intellectual statesman nor the safest political leader in the world, perhaps, nevertheless a simple, shrewd, homely, representative Western man of the people. Quite as truly representative in his proneness to be guided by emotion rather than by cold reason, as in his distaste for vain display and his disregard of the mysteries of Washingtonian red tape.

NEW WORK FOR MIDDLEMEN.

The "farm-to-the-table" service of the parcel post now comprises twenty-seven cities. This now establishes Uncle Sam as the only middleman between producer and consumer, eliminating to an extent the commission merchant, the retail dealer and the express carrier. It is an interesting development of Postoffice functions, and all that remains is to see how it works as respects the division of the former middlemen's profits. Will farmer or householder get the lion's share?—New York World.

There remains, also, the need for producers in the country to make use of the service which the Government has placed at their command. This only a few have done.

It appears there is a link lacking. That link is a new group of middlemen, located in villages and country towns, operating to develop supply on the farms and demand in the cities.

These middlemen, whose appearance to occupy an attractive field presently vacant seems assured, will perform, in the new organization, much the same service now rendered by the middlemen of the big cities.

They will buy from or act as agents for country producers and will sell to city consumers. They will deal with the producers directly, seeking them out in person and informing them of market needs which these persons can profitably supply.

They will find their city customers by advertising what they have to offer in the city newspapers.

Some of the middlemen now active will be put out of business. Those who can handily adapt themselves to use the new system will find useful occupation and a profit therein. A business of this kind is waiting to be developed by some energetic man or woman in every considerable village or town the center of a food-producing region within 100 miles of a large city.

JUST A MINUTE.

Written for the Post-Dispatch by Clark McAdams.

THE READER'S WAR GUIDE.
We gave the war all the space it needed on yesterday, hoping that the tide of victory might finally turn one way or the other. It was of no avail. The additional space only permitted everybody to bring up more troops, and the armies were no big and unready that they did not know whether they were winning or losing. The Weather Bird says the complete ignorance of everybody in the paper as to how the battle is probably going is one of the most astonishing things in history. The only people he found with any idea that they were either winning or losing were the Russians, who seem obsessed with the notion that they are driving everything before them. Where they got that idea is more than the Weather Bird can make out. Everybody opposed to the Russians claims that they are not gaining an inch, and that the Weather Bird is beginning to doubt it himself. He observed the Russians on the third page for one entire day, and came to the conclusion that their notion that they are going right ahead all the time is an optical illusion. He says the Russians are a very imaginative people. They unquestionably did play havoc with the Austrians early in the war, but their delusion that they are going through the Germans in the same way is worthy of the best things the Slavs have done in art. The Weather Bird told them they would get a much better line on themselves by observing the number of the page they are on. He says it is the scenery that is going toward Berlin. The Germans knocked down a lot of printers' supplies of one kind and another on yesterday with their big siege guns. They were plumping bombs as big as a barrel into every part of the paper all day, and every one of those huge projectiles exploded when it struck. The idea as it impressed us in the course of a studious observation is that the big bomb contains a great many smaller bombs. These, in turn, contain other bombs, and so on down to projectiles which scatter tiny bombs no bigger than pills. Dumping one of these progressive projectiles into the center of a town, the Germans very soon have bombs of all sizes letting off all over the place, until it is infested with a perfect plague of niggerboaters.

of one kind and another. The chance that anyone in the town will escape is reduced to comparatively nothing. Even the Weather Bird spent a good part of yesterday behind an ad.

The Weather Bird's forecast of fair weather for the Velled Prophet parade reveals peace among prophets, anyway.

Advis Bert All Right.

Bert Whitfield wishes to let it be known that the stand taken by President Wilson and the President's way of handling the perplexing questions that came before him, meets with his approval and that if he continues to be able to solve those that may come before him during the remainder of his term, also being able to keep peace established on the Western Hemisphere for the next two years, that he will give him the unqualified support at the next presidential election.—Crocketed Clerk Correspondence in De Kalb County (Mo.) ## THE BABY.

So small! So dainty and so sweet.
Faith's Promise from the God of Love!
To old Earth from Heav'n above.
From Araby last thou flows to greet
The world, O Mildred, baby sweet.
Thou bond of love—of love complete—
Affection's tie and bond thou art.
The knot that knits the wedded heart—
Thou cherub sweet!

From hosts of song, the Christ-child brings.
Thou seraph choral from afar,
In splendor from a regal star,
Rare incense from Hope's altar flung!
With star and smile and softer ear,
Bond of Delight, abide thou here.
Still closer knit the wedded heart
In webs of love—for love thou art—
O baby sweet!

BOSTON: "I WONDER?"

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

HAIR CULTURE.
FANNIE.—To know of a case of hair removed by borax and water.
MARY.—Falling hair: Massage thoroughly with a stimulating cream, thoroughly, too. Apply crude petroleum or salt, rubbing in. Persevere.
E. K. F.—Olive oil applied to the skin has sometimes caused growth of hair. There are other oils that are better on the skin than olive oil. If taken internally, it tends to clear the complexion. You may apply oil of sweet almonds, coconut oil or lanolin.
CLEANING.
R. A.—Equal mixture of turpentine and ammonia is said to remove paint spots, no matter how old.
HEALTHY HINTS.
J. A. F.—One physician says: Daily bathing is necessary to obtain the very best bodily conditions. Health requires that the four eliminating agents of the body (lungs, kidneys, bowels, skin) should be kept normally active. Deep breathing is essential to the first, water, inside and outside, for the three remaining agents. A cold bath is always stimulating, and has no detrimental reaction for one who is sufficiently robust to take it. You are obliged to exercise after bathing for the purpose of getting warm. It is a sure indication that your vitality is too low for such a bath. This applies with equal force to the matter of dressing immediately after bathing. A hot water bath, as a rule, should be avoided, especially by those that are nervous. While it is a powerful stimulant of the nervous and vascular system, it is usually followed with strong reaction. Warm water or tepid bath is highly recommended for those that cannot take a cold bath. Another physician says: Bathing is an acquired habit, unnecessary and even harmful. Cold or hot water showers or baths, and any form of immersion, will be injurious in the end. Man is an air animal, not a water animal. An aged woman asked me if it was good practice to chill the human skin with cold water to warm it. Cold water is recommended as a body warmer, as it is not today what it used to be. A cold cocktail of whisky. Man has acquired many conceits. A bathhouse is an enemy in the house. It is expensive and adds to the toll of women. Bathing begets false security against disease, weakness and lowers the alertness, extracts bodily energy and magnetism, and entails on society a needless habit.
HOUSEHOLD HELPS.
A. K.—Metal polish: Mix thoroughly 1/4 lb. best prepared chalk, 3 oz. turpentine, 2 oz. benzine and 1 oz. liquid ammonia. Shake bottle well before using and apply with sponge, allowing mixture to dry before using. It will polish to a shine. Or try the following: Two ounces best prepared chalk, 1 oz. oxalic acid, 2 oz. benzine and 1 oz. turpentine. Thoroughly mix the oxalic acid and benzine and turpentine, and then add the chalk, using as before. (Remember that this is a shake mixture.)
J. B. R.—Recipe for dill pickles: Fill two-quart Mason jars with cucumbers, about four or five inches long, putting dill broken into small pieces in them. Add one quart vinegar. Pack jars closely. Make brine of one gallon good cider vinegar and pour over the cucumbers, leaving an inch space where the light and a little sunshine will strike. Shake occasionally. After 3 weeks remove to fruit closet; if they ferment and brine looks white, it will not injure. Add a few green grapes if you like. Get rid from jar.
J. J. B.—Pecanillo: Pack green tomatoes, large, in jars, about 12 green sweet peppers, four or five red sweet peppers, 1/2 onion. Run these through meat chopper and mix with vinegar, mixed pickle; that is, three quarts of vinegar, four cups sugar, four teaspoons celery salt, one cup mustard, mix half pound mustard seed, half cup flour and half ounce turmeric with a little cold water. Stir in the mixture until it thickens. Then add the chopped and drained vegetables and mix and seal thoroughly, adding the cayenne pepper. Bottle hot in Mason jars.
LAW POINTS.
THANKFUL.—Hunting with any kind of rifle requires a license.
C. R.—Simply tell the postoffice not to deliver your mail to your husband.
O. K.—See Prosecuting Attorney of your county about the 12-year-old working child.
LUCILLE.—If he asked you to marry him you may sue him for breach of promise.
C. K.—Try phoning Marriage License Clerk, city hall phone. Marriage under any name is binding.
ADULT.—For Illinois marriage license both parties must be present. Illinois license is not good in other states.
S. T.—There is no law against compelling a son or daughter to support a parent, and many do not support an aged father or mother who have acquired good communications.
EAST SIDE.—If any organization is violating any Illinois law as an arm of a company, it is a matter for the prosecuting attorney, with whom you may easily communicate.
ALPH.—One to whom introductory decree of divorce is granted in California can marry in no state until after final decree, and final decree cannot be obtained until 6 months have expired after granting introductory.
MISCELLANEOUS.

Pretty Finery of the Rare
October Days.

By EDGAR WELTON COOLEY.

RELUCTANTLY he turned from the main-traveled road and drove slowly up the lane that led to her farm.

In the still air the rustle of the leaves beneath the horses' feet seemed intensified. Occasionally a rabbit, by the road-side, sped away, an indistinct blur in the uncertain light. Over in the timber, along the river, a dog barked and a man whistled. All else was silent.

Presently he drew rein beside her father's gate, in the shadow of an oak whose leaves, brown and sere, rustled in the night breeze.

He turned and looked into the face of the woman beside him. She was gazing upward through the leaves at the moon, whose light seemed to form a halo around her head.

"Minnie," he said, "why will you not give me your answer now? Why do you keep me waiting?"

"Robert," she said softly, "you and I have spent all our lives upon a farm. With you it has been nothing but plow and sow and reap; with me it is milk and churn and gather eggs and cook for harvest hands. I am poor, but what have you to offer me? Nothing, but life upon a farm. To marry you would be only to change my place of residence from this hillside to the valley yonder—to slave for my husband instead of for my father and mother. I am poor, Robert, but I have aspirations. I would not care to shine in society, but I would like to live in a city; to be where there is action, activity, something beside the dull, monotony of this isolation."

Yearning for the City.

SHE paused but he did not answer, and she resumed:

"I do not object to hard work, Robert. I am willing to do my share of the world's labor. But somehow I feel that life in the city must be much brighter, so much better, than this humdrum existence that you and I endure."

"Minnie," he said, complacently, "I thought you loved me."

"Oh, Robert," was the hasty answer, "do not conclude from what I have said that I do not love you, for I do, you know I do. Only—oh, I don't know. I wish you lived in town."

A sudden gleam came into the man's face, but he uttered no word, and for many moments they sat in silence, listening to the murmur of the wind in the branches of the tree and the tread of a rabbit among the dead leaves.

The next morning Minnie, standing by the well, saw a man riding along the main-traveled road toward town. He waved his hand at her and she answered and watched him until he disappeared behind a piece of timber.

It was dusk when Robert returned, and Minnie was in the cow-lot milking when he drove up the lane. He whistled and she sat down her bucket and walked to the fence.

"I have traded my farm," he said quietly, almost sadly.

"Traded it?" she asked. Traded it for what?

He hesitated a moment. Then he said: "Well, I have traded it for stock in a Colorado gold mine. Saw the agent in town today. He allowed me $5000 for the farm and guaranteed me 25 percent a year on the stock. That means over $1250. We could live quite comfortably on that, even in the city. Do you not think so?"

"Oh, Robert, Robert," she cried, then burst into tears and covered her face with her hands. He gazed at her in astonishment and finally she raised her head.

"I did not mean for you to sell the farm," she said. "Oh, I did not mean that. I am afraid you have made quite too great a sacrifice."

He smiled. "No, little girl," he replied, "no sacrifice is to great for you. Tomorrow I am to deliver the deed and then—and then, may I come to you for your answer?"

"Yes," she replied, "Come to me tomorrow evening and we will walk in the moonlight and talk of the future."

Minnie Pauses to Reflect.

H touched his hat and drove away, and she returned to her task with a new joy in her heart. She was to live in the city—to leave the farm and its monotonous life!

To leave the farm! She glanced across the fields, peaceful and quiet under the autumn skies. The air was soft and fragrant with the scent of the apples in the orchard and the hay in the great barns. How pure was the air; how bright the sunlight in the country. After all, did she want to leave the farm?

Slowly she walked to the house carrying the bucket of steaming milk and listening to the lowing of the cattle. Did she want to leave the farm where she spent all her life—all her happy young life?

On the following morning the County Sheriff drove up the lane and knocked at the door. Her father admitted him.

"I am looking for a man," he said, "who has been selling stock in a Colorado gold mine. He is a swindler; the mine is a fake and I have a warrant for him. He drove out this way this morning. Have you seen him?"

The girl turned pale and trembled. She grasped the back of a chair and stared at the officer. "He is a swindler," she kept repeating to herself. "Robert, poor Robert!"

Then the blood rushed to her face and the fire to her eyes. Seizing the Sheriff by the arm, she almost dragged him to the door.

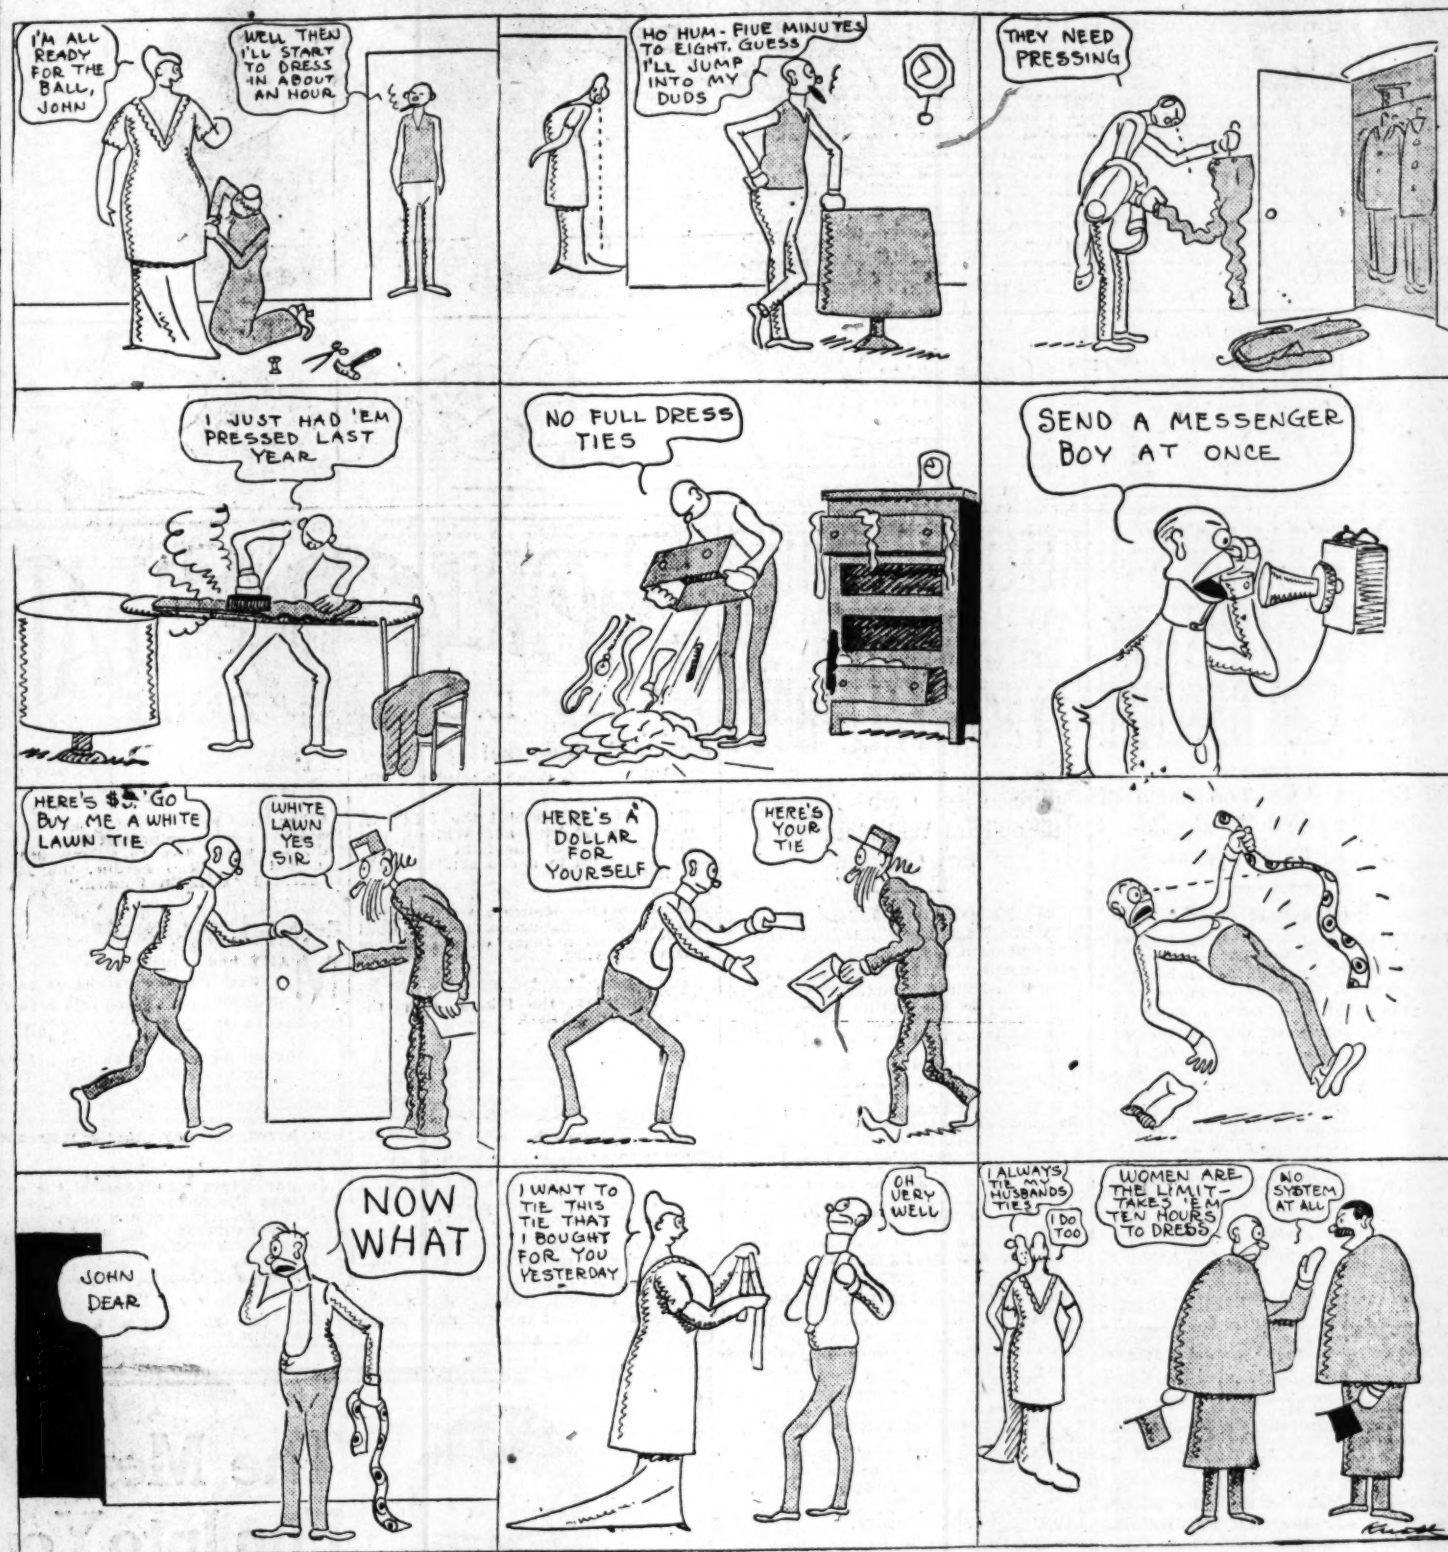

"Come!" she said. "Come quick; I know where he has gone."

The Swindler Arrested.

When they reached Robert's farm, they met the "agent" driving out at the gate and the Sheriff placed him under arrest. In his possession was the deed which Robert had just delivered to him.

Woman Takes Hours to Dress, While Man
Just Hops Into His Clothes and Is Ready

Drawn for the Post-Dispatch by Jean Knott.

This was returned to the young man who had been a silent but very much astonished witness of the dramatic scene.

As Robert stood watching the Sheriff and his prisoner drive away down the road, Minnie approached him alternately laughing and crying.

"What's the matter?" Robert demanded, wonder and perplexity written upon his face.

"Oh, I am so glad!" she replied, "so glad. That man is a swindler, Robert. His gold mine is a myth, the stock is worthless and you would have lost everything."

Arm in arm, under the harvest moon, Minnie and Robert walked down the lane that evening.

"I had hoped for your answer to-night," he said, "but now, my plans have failed and I can see no way but to remain on the farm, at least for the present. If I could sell it, I—"

"Oh, Robert," she said, "let us stay on the farm. It is so pleasant here. See how softly those scarlet leaves glimmer in the moonlight. Can't you smell the fragrance all around us—the fragrance of the fields in autumn? I don't want to leave the country, Robert. I want to live with you—down there in the valley."

He pressed her hand.

"Little girl," he said, "I did not want to go to town. Somehow I felt so kinder and at ease when I was in the orchard and the hay in the great barns. How pure was the air; how bright the sunlight in the country. After all, did she want to leave the farm?"

How Joel
and Amos
Found a Home

By Mrs. F. A. Walker.

PART I.

JOEL and Amos were brothers, and when their father and mother died they were left alone in the world. They did not have even an uncle or aunt to whom they could go for a home.

And the little house in which they lived on the edge of a forest was so miserable and old it seemed ready to fall apart, but the boys patched it as well as they could and Amos said he thought they could find wood enough blown from the trees to store away for the winter, for they were so poor they did not even have a hatchet.

"But what will we eat, brother?" asked Joel. "We must have food as well as fuel."

"I had not thought of that," replied Amos. "We have so little at any time we should be able to get along somehow."

So the brothers set out, but they walked a long way into the forest without seeing anyone, and had it not been for the berries they found they would have starved.

The second day, just as night came, on Joel said to his brother, "I am sure I see smoke in the distance, and it must be a house."

The smoke did come from a chimney, just as Joel thought, and when they came near to it they saw a strange-looking house, built of stone and iron bars at all the windows.

They heard someone coming in answer to their pounding and they felt sure now of something to eat, but when the door was opened they started back, and both boys felt a little frightened at the strange creature that stood before them.

BUT before they had recovered enough to ask for shelter and food the strange creature said, "Come right in, my dears, and eat and drink, for I know you must be tired."

The queer-looking creature was not much taller than Joel or Amos, but was much larger and broader. In fact, he looked as big as three men all in one, and his arms and hands were so large he could hold a boy on each, which was just what he did as soon as he opened the door.

Then he spread out a hand toward each boy and said, "Jump on; I will carry you upstairs."

Joel and Amos obeyed this strange command, and in a minute the boys were being carried up a long flight of stone stairs on the hand of the queer man.

When they reached the top he let the boys slide off his hands to the floor and then they noticed for the first time that their host had four feet and four legs.

His eyes were so small they could hardly be seen, and his hair grew so white. His face was so fat it resembled a big pumpkin more than anything else, in color as well as size, only it was larger than any pumpkin the boys had ever seen.

Joel was the first to speak to this strange creature. "We are lost in the forest," he said, "and we have had little to eat since yesterday. Would you be so kind as to give us food and shelter for the night? We will do any work you may have. We can dig in the garden or chop wood to pay you for what you give us."

"That you shall," said the man, "and I will give you food and shelter and you shall dig for me until you find it."

THE boys did not ask what he meant by this strange promise, for before they had time to think they were again picked up by the strange man, and this time he carried them by their coat collars along a dark passage. Both boys were terribly frightened, but when they smelled food, as they did in a minute, they thought it might be only the strange way their strange host had of treating his guests, and by the time they were put on their feet they were not at all frightened.

"There is your supper; eat all you want," said the man.

At a long table in the room where they stood were 10 boys about the same age as Joel and Amos, and they were eating from big, steaming dishes.

Joel and Amos did not need a second bidding, and when they had found a bowl and spoon and were eating, the queer man went out and left them alone.

Joel and Amos were eating all the time, so when old Pumpkin Head opened the door in a few minutes they were well filled and ready to work, although they thought it strange to be working by candle light and wondered where they were to dig.

"Come along, now, all of you lazy-bones," said old Pumpkin Head, and he drove the boys in front of him with a long whip he carried.

But when they reached the top of the stairs all the boys stopped, and old Pumpkin Head went in front of them and spread out his big hands.

This time he took the boys on each hand and carried them down the stairs, returning until all were placed on the ground.

Joel and Amos had noticed the floor was covered with boards when they came in, but now it was one big hole, with the sides wide enough to stand on.

Old Pumpkin Head took each boy and dropped him into the hole, and they all began to dig, and tomorrow I will tell you how they worked and what happened to make all the boys happy.

The production of butter is one of Sweden's greatest industries, and even milk is exported in large quantities. In 1907 the export of butter amounted to something like $5,000,000; in 1913 the value of the exports had increased to $12,100,000. A considerable amount of cream is also exported, especially to Germany.

WASHING WON'T RID
HEAD OF DANDRUFF

Dissolve It, That's Best Way.

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

If you want to preserve your hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff; for nothing destroys the hair more quickly. It not only starves the hair and makes it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggled, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless, and every one notices it. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

CHAPTERS FROM A WOMAN'S LIFE

By Dale Drummond.

Chapter LXXXV.

OFTEN thought of Gertie, but talked no more about her. Jack appeared to dislike any reference to her trouble. He had always admired Clifton, and I was sure he sided with him and thought he had done right.

Jack's salary was now $500. Significant of his altered manner was the fact that he had had the raise for some time before telling me of it.

"That is very nice," I replied coldly when he mentioned that Mr. Flam had again raised his salary, but that he had not told me at once, although immediately planning what I should do with the added $500. "But I don't see why you didn't tell me before?"

"What difference does it make?" he rejoined wearily. "Nowadays $500 more or less doesn't count."

I had never overcome my dislike for Mr. Flam, never ceased to think that it was not for Jack's foolish fear of displeasing him he would have speculated openly as others did and so have made more money—more money for me to spend. Always in my thoughts I blamed Jack that we were not rich.

We now lived more as I wished. Jack told me nothing of his stock market operations, and he never questioned me about my expenditures. He gave me money when I asked for it, paid the bills without grumbling, and in addition often made me a present of a check of considerable size. Yet I was never out of debt. Mrs. Lorraine, finding me so fond of clothes, constantly tempted me (it was very easy), and my bills were enormous. I never had her entirely paid up. If I gave her some money I at the same time ordered more clothes. At this time she had no trouble selling me her most expensive creations. If I liked anything, the cost never bothered me in the least. Jack would have to pay for it.

"Women Wondered at Me."

I THINK his keeping his affairs from me made me more reckless than I should otherwise have been. I imagined—wrongly—that he was making large sums in the market and that he did not want me to know how large.

"That's Mrs. Jack Coolidge!" I heard a woman's voice remark one day in a department store. "Doesn't she dress exquisitely? I used to see her four or five years ago, and while she always looked well, she didn't dress anything as she does now."

"How does she do it?" her companion asked. "Jack Coolidge is only a clerk in Flam's. He can't get such an enormous salary. My husband knew him in college and says he is a fine fellow."

"Do you suppose there is another man in the case?" the first speaker inquired.

My cheeks burned; I was indignant at the implied insult and strained my ears for the reply.

"I'm sure I don't know! I imagine there may be. My husband has just about the same kind of a position Mr. Coolidge has, and we have only one child, while they have two. And I can't have anything like the clothes she does. I hear, too, that they have a lovely home, motor cars and everything."

"Well, you can make up your mind there's a nigger in the woodpile somewhere!" the other inelegantly replied as they moved along out of hearing.

"Vulgar cats!" I muttered, yet ashamed and annoyed.

That anyone should dare to even intimate that I was or could be untrue to Jack was unbelievable. Then, it was one of their business where or how I got my clothes.

This episode rather troubled me. I couldn't easily dismiss from my mind the conversation I had overheard.

"Jack, just what is your position with Flam & Co.?"

"What?"

"I want to know! Are you still nothing but a clerk? What does Mr. Flam call you?"

"What difference does it make what he calls me, so long as he pays me what I am worth—and a good deal more," he added.

"Jack's Answer Is Bitter."

DID not like the reticence Jack observed about his business affairs and I determined to have it out with him.

"It makes a good deal of difference," I replied. "If you are not a clerk I don't see why you should be called one!" thinking of the conversation I had overheard.

"I suppose I am a kind of manager—assistant manager, rather. Mr. Flam manages his own business as far as he is able. But why this sudden anxiety to know my technical position?"

"I heard someone say you were only a clerk in Flam's, and it made me mad," I evaded.

"Made you mad because you know that we have no right to live as we are living, that you have no right to dress as you do, to have motors, etc.," he returned with quick understanding.

"No!" I declared. "It made me mad that you had insisted on remaining in a subordinate position all these years when, if you had any grit, any backbone, you would have had a business of your own! I'm tired of being called 'a clerk's wife.'"

"You have spent the money faster than I could make it, Sue. What chance had I but to stay where I was, the only place where I could make money enough to meet your demands?"

It had been long since Jack had so let himself go. The bitterness in his voice was unmistakable. My surprise almost—almost—overcame my indignation.

"Other women don't have to hear their husbands call 'clerks'!"

"Had I tried to go into business for myself, Sue, or as I considered about a year ago, with a partner, you would have swamped us in six months. When men go into business with limited capital they have to live more economically until they are established. Tell me, has there ever been a time when you were willing to do that?"

"You always blame me!" womanlike, I returned.

"I'm not blaming you, Sue. You brought up the question, not I. I promised to make you happy, and I am doing my best to keep that promise. If the deluge comes, don't blame me."

"So you are manager for Flam & Co., not a clerk?" I asked, reverting to my first question.

"What a tease you are!" he answered pleasantly. "Yes, I am practically their manager, getting more money, more consideration than I deserve."

Only a Peace Meeting

A RIOT call had been sent in, and the police had arrested the whole lodge meeting. At the hearing, however, there appeared to be a strange reluctance about testifying. The judge noticed that, although everybody would admit that there had been trouble, nobody would tell what started it. So it was that His Honor pinned one sensational man—the Honorable Worthy Inner Custodian It was—down to facts. "You say somebody started this row by hitting somebody over the head with something. Now who hit whom with what on what occasion?" "The occasion was the annual grand peace pipe meeting of the Brotherly Love Lodge of the Heart-and-Heart Fraternity. We were met to welcome—" "Never mind. Who was the assailant?" "The chairman of the entertainment committee—" "Whom did he hit?" "We call him Noble Lord of Universal Peace—" "What did he hit him with?" "The loving cup—Cleveland, Plain Dealer."

"Bill"

By PAUL WEST.

In Which Bill and Ethel Meet an Appreciative Old Gentleman and Become Very Rich —Till They Wake Up!

Isn't it awful to be a poor working girl, or a poor office boy, compelled to stay in the office while the Boss is off motoring? Still, twenty thousand dollars apiece for Ethel and Bill is no bad for an afternoon, only you can't cash good intentions.

ZZZ KATZ hands his face in to the door wan day just after lunch, an' says: "Come on Shrimp," he says, "I got th' loan o' th' afternoon off, an' they's a couple o' new films down to th' By-Joe 'round th' corner." "Wait till I hand th' Boss an' kinder say, I says, an' I'm just startin' fer th' privet camp whin out he comes, wid th' cap wid th' goggles on top o' it, an' his autumbuggy duster onto him.

"Bill," he says, "elder th' whole worl', barin' that small portion o' it knowed as Yurup, are at pough or else thim that is probasin' that delectful but lxpensive luxury knowed as Litigation is goin' elsewhere fer to get it. At all evintz, he says, "they don't seem to be nuttin' doin' roun' here this afternoon, so me an' Misses Hadley is goin' fer a little spin in th' new car."

"I leave th' work," he says, "in the compitint charge o' youse, ably assisted be that paradox o' efficiency, to wit, Miss Jackson," he says, "an' wish youse a pleasant afternoon." An' he's gone. That nalls me fer th' rest o' th' day, an' I'm as sore as a pup what bit himself chasin' fleas wain Ethel blows in from feedin'.

"Oho," she says, rushin' to th' look-in' glass an' beginnin' fer to put an' duster coat o' paint onto her map, "don't youse wish youse was not?" "If I was," I says, "I'd get enough on all at wain time," I says, an' not be havin' to be touchin' it up livery f' minutes." "Youse jealous," she says, "Y'll be more jealous, too, whin y' hear about me this afternoon. Settin' up here in th' country," she says, "pippin' tea wid th' sweetest ladies in th' Suffrage society, whilst yout're chavin' away here—" "Stah! so?" I says, "Do th' Boss know about it?" "Not yit," she says, "but he can't refuse me, seein' his wife got me into th' suffrage game. I'm goin' ter tell him now," she says, startin' fer his dump.

Ethel Has to Forego Her Suffrage Party

"THIN yout'll have to move faster than that," I says, "seein' about now he's a mile away in his choo-choo." "What?" she bellers. "Heigh!" I says, "I let him an' th' Misses go fer a ride in th' new car not th' minuss since, an' th' instructions is that yer to hang roun' an' see that I lock th' doors good an' tight, so him th' more he might be loosenin' up, so I makes a bluff fer to go in an' see in th' Boss there. On the way through Ethel's room I flashes th' check in her face.

Bill Flashes the Check

So Ethel Can See It

"LOOKOUT!" I says, "An old party gimme it fer bein' so good-lookin', an' I'm makin' th' bluff th' Boss are in, so's to hold him. If he hands me anudder," I says, "mebbe I'll slip it to youse." An' I butts in th' Boss' room an' takes a glim at th' check. It's all right an' proper, signed James Rockenfeller, an' I near drops dead at th' name.

I stuffs it in me kick an' grabs th' Boss' box o' seegars, an' skips out fer to hand th' old guy wan o' thim. He's wort' nussin', all right. But whaddya tink! There's me frien' Ethel, th' foxy bird, out in th' outside office wid him, chinnin' as nice as pie.

"Have a smoke, Mr. Rockenfeller," I says, pokin' th' box into his map, an' he grabs four or five o' thim, an' says to me:

"Tanks, me lad," he says, "fer that," he says, "as soon as I git t'rough writin' a tin 'ousand dollar check fer th' young lady here, because she's th' handsomist creature I've ever seen," he says, "I'll make out wan fer youse fer th' same amount!"

"That's nuttin'," he says, passin' Ethel her check, an' makin' out wan fer me th' same. "That's a mere bag o' shells," he says, "compared to what I'll be doin' fer th' bot' o' youse later on. I like th' looks o' th' two o' youse," he says. "Would youse like a glass o' water. Mister Rockenfeller?" says Ethel. "Bill, run get Mister Rockenfeller a match fer his seegar?"

An' th' way th' old baby grined over it, "Gimme back that check," says he, grabbin' hers, "an' I'll make it out fer twinty 'ousand!" An' on th' level, he dun so.

"Here's me check," I says, slippin' it to him, "in case youse'd like fer to raise it a little!" An' he dun th' same as Ethel's.

"An' now," he says, "to come down to business. Th' reason I'm here is fer to—"

Well, I seen 'twas all over, but holly gee! what more could we be astin'! I'd a good mind fer to duck right then an' there, but Ethel spoils it, sayin': "Mister Hadley are out at p'aint, Mister Rockenfeller, but if youse'll state yer business we'll tell him."

"Nivar mind Mister Hadley, whoever he are," says he, "I forgot what I come in fer, anyhow, but Fate must o' led me here, because yer just th' two I been lookin' fer. Tell me, do elder o' youse see annythin' th' matter wid me?" "I should say not," says Ethel. "Youse, Bill!" "If I did I'd be a nut," I says.

"Listen!" says th' old boy, lookin' round foxy-like. "That's th' very t'ing some o' me enemies says about me." "Gwan!" I says, "Th' jealous cats!" says Ethel, lampin' her check. "I s'pose it's because youse wouldn't loosen up to everywan th' name?" "That's it," says he, "They say I'm crazy, an' they'd like fer to look me up!" "Kin youse beat that?" I says.

"They's enemies on me track all th' time," he says, "I'd nivar believe what they do to me, an' from now on I want to ingaze youse two fer to per-teek me. We'll go to Yurup," he says, "th' tree of us, an' escape 'em!" Fine! I says, "Whin do we start?" "Tomorrow," he says, "no, mebbe to-day!" "But me husband," says Ethel.

An Autumn Voice.

OH, the pumpkin with frost gems is crusted
As it dreams by the old orchard wall;
And the burr on the chestnut is full,
And the crow's on the big button ball.
Oh, a spirit serene sadly hovers
Round the woodland of russet and red,
And it warbles, "More covers, more covers,
There ain't half enough on this bed."

Out of the Frying Pan

FARMER CORNTASSEL: I don't see your boy, Hank, around the place no more, Hank. Got tired of their farm, I guess, and hit out for their city, heh?

Farmer Hayrick: Yep, Zeke's done quit me. Been gone more'n four months now. Got mad one night because he had to feed th' chickens, packed his valise and lit out. Got a swell place, he says.

"What's he doin'?"

"Well, I jes' can't make out, Si. The last time he wrote his ma he said he was a waiter in a high-tone restaurant, and was feeding chickens to beat their band."

No Doubt About It.

"Those men seem well connected," said Mullins as he looked at an officer and prisoner, handcuffed together, on their way to the courtroom.

The Wrong Kind.

WHAT caused the row?" inquired the policeman, who had been sent for to quell a disturbance following a wedding in the colored section of the city.

"To see, sah," explained the man who had seen it all; "we wuz throwin' old shoes atfah the happy couple, an' Sam Johnson, wot wuz jilted, felt jallus, and he wrot a horseshoe."

Paradoxical.

"There is one thing paradoxical about this life."

"What is that?"

"We never discover what a cold world this is until we get into hot water."
